THE BOMB

A BOOK PUBLISHED ANNUALLY
BY THE CORPS OF CADETS
OF THE
VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE
LEXINGTON, VA

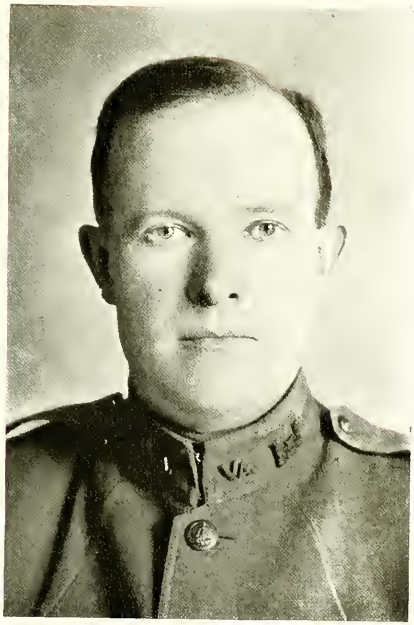

FOREWORD

TO the casual reader this book will portray most of the joys and a few of the sorrows of Cadet Life.

To the Class of it's source may it ever be a relaxation in times of tension, a spur to the jaded imagination, a memoir of the most intimate associations and the truest friendships of a lifetime. Suffering as they may have, "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune", it remains but for the future to erase all troubled memories and to supplant them with only happy recollections.

Dedicated

To one whose courteous and friendly attitude, invaluable aid, and untiring efforts in the interests of the Cadets have won the respect, gratitude, and love of all who know him.

Colonel William M. Hunley

On a well-remembered day in early September, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, there came into our midst, the future honor and glory of the old Institute, this noble product of the suburbs of Lynchburg. He had no sooner embarked upon the rough waters of rathood, than his abilities were recognized, and he was made section marcher of that famous 7th section. At the end of his rat year, he had made two momentous decisions—of becoming the master of test-tubes and hydrochloric acid fumes, and that all women are liars and deceivers, except one. With his perserverance and natural ability, you may rest assured of his success in the first, and it would not be surprising if one day we learn that the unknown element between barium and radium has been discovered. As to his success in the latter, there is no doubt in the minds of anyone who has seen the number of specials he receives, post-marked "Lynchburg." In June, 1920, the Institute loses a valuable son, but one who cannot fail to bring future credit and honor to his Alma Mater. John, you are a true friend, good-natured, unselfish, loyal and all of us unite in wishing you the sincerest Godspeed.

'Twas back in the days when Twenty were rats that this little Ray, the sunshine of Virginia, drifted thru the arch and cast his radiance over barracks. His marvelous ability to produce an excuse at a moment's notice soon earned for him the moniker of Alibi Alvis. With his roommates he has always been noted for the easy way in which he could cut for a "bone" and win. Along some other lines he has not been quite so fortunate, notably, backing "dark horses" at the hops and filling "interior straights" in E-2.

As a rat he drew some awful chords out of his horn while practicing with the "Keydet Orchestra," and even became so proficient in this brand of wind jamming that he attained the magnificent position of understudy to the Great and Only "Tom Du." His accuracy while chewing tobacco has long been the terror of the grasshoppers and the envy of all the members of the Cracker Barrel clique down in "FEEsherville,', by heck!

When the war came on our Hero champed his bit around barracks a few weeks and then departed for Fortress Monroe in spite of "Old Nick's" refusing to accept his resignation. Acting thus, he sacrificed his record to his patriotism and accepted his dismissal as the need of a would-be-hero. Down among the "Big Gun Wrastlers" and working hard, he was in a mighty fair way to be sporting his "Baby Pin" by Christmas, when Kaiser Bill called quits and the "Camp Contingent" returned to the pursuits of the elusive dip.

"We all know you all are both big dogs, but for Craps sake pipe down and let a guy snag off a little hay."

FIRST CLASS: Private Co. "E"; Noble 47; Marshall Final German.

Into the jaws of Hell came Pete on one September Morn when his guiding star rolled Snake Eyes consecutively to the God of Fortune. He successfully passed through his Rat year, during the usual gross things, as telling an Old Keydet "to be seated." As a hard third classman he donned those corporal cheverons and become ideal "in running" (demerits). When his blouse had a couple of stripes upon it he became an electrician, contrary to the laws of Nature being born and bred an Artist of the first water in both knocking off hay, and slinging a line.

When his country called he went to Camp Taylor as a rough and ready Artilleryman. There "Big Buck" became the "Bell Boys Buddie" and the "Chum of Old Taylor." An officer suggested transferral to the tank corps, he being one by nature, but Bill did not like this as there would be bigger ones there and he could and would not be outshone.

Pete, though no large man in stature, deserves his monogram, having been on the Varsity Poker Squad for two years. As a first classman he was all right till Leap year '20 rolled around, but from then on he has been S. O. L. Neither his own Calie nor Dame Fortune courted him while the choice was theirs. He thinks he will be a jeweler after getting a dip., having a good supply of stock in rings, pins, and lavalierres. However, whatever he is we know he will roll a bunch of "Naturals" and soon be the holder of a "Full House."

"They're good. Drag the pot."

Backus, James Holland!! No, not the mirthful Deity, of whom Barracks entertains numerous worshippers. But his namesake is not among that happy-go-lucky congregation—that is, so far as we know, he is not (?) How 'bout it, Sop? But when it comes to hitting the hay, or smoking a good cigar, Sop is all there. And as for an engineer, well, even the Master Engineer would swear he wasn't a Liberal Artist. Really, he was a top Sergeant in that branch of the service, and that explains his skill and marvelous ability in that direction. But as for a true friend, and one that's true to the score, we again say, Sop is all there. Under his amiable exterior lives one of the best natures that can be found, and he is one who will go far out of his way to perform a favor for any and everybody. Diogenes, in his search for an honest man, would have done well to scrutinize this one closely. So, "Whackus," we know you will never need it, but in any event, if by some peculiar turn in the wheels of fortune you should need a helping hand, here's ours, heart and soul.

To gaze on that picture one could guess some of the virtues, but it would take a wiser sage than inhabits these walls to enumerate the many good qualities of the real thing. To say "Bert" is a good fellow hardly starts it, or to say "a Lion among Ladies," would be merely a beginner for him. One of the best men that ever wore the grey is an adequate tribute, for such is his standing among those that have known him for four years, or one.

As an athlete he holds the highest position in the class; four years on the basketball team, and captain in the last. In football "Beaney" was a sensational "Find," not only winning his monogram but he was one of the main factors in the Thanksgiving victory. He was named on the All South Atlantic Basketball Team, which shows his mettle along that line. He has been Captain of the Swimming Team for the past three years, and in his first class year was President of both the Monogram Club and the Athletic Association.

"Bert" is unusually prominent during the hops and many a strange damsel has "fallen" for his dancing or winning ways. He goes from here into business, the success of which is assured. No man who has gone through four years with his enviable record could change in the future, so our best wishes go out with the surety of a lifelong V. M. I. man. ,

After quite a lot of preparation for entering "college," "Bud" drifted into the Arch one morning early in September, 1916, strolled nonchantly up to the O. D., saluted and reported for duty. Having been told that this place was "heaven," he was not quite prepared for the reception tendered him at the hands of those "mean Third Classmen," but soon became accustomed to their daily visits and the life here.

Thruout his four years at the Institute, "Judge's" strong point has been penalty tours. No "keydet" in recent years has even shown any promise of equaling his record in this respect. Therefore, his military aspirations have not run very high and his chief ambition is to rank the Commandant, even if he has to die first to accomplish this desire. On the very few occassions his name happened to miss the list of "tourists," tho, "Bud" considered it a suspension day for himself and might be seen taking a little exercise that afternoon by walking in the vicinity of East Lexington, having quite a number of friends in that thriving metropolis. Aside from this, his principal occupation is "hitting the hay" and he may be found in his "lily white" (?) at almost anytime, even during Morning Inspection.

During his many tours, both night and day, a kindred feeling sprang up between "Judge" and others of the "trifling element," which quickly developed into a close friendship and spread thruout the entire corps. Here's wishing you the best of luck, "Bud."

"Halt! who's there." "Open face Tom, Sir," and so he made his debut into military circles. Innocuous rat, running corporal, color sergeant, and the saintly first lieutenant,—Tom is now upon the threshold of graduation.

Beyond being from Alabama, and rooming in a menagerie, Tom has no vices. The clicking of chips and rattling of dice are an abomination, and betting approaches a sacrilege. But it is said that all truly great men have a weakness, and his lies in love of food. Yea verily, his hunger is everlasting, and his appetite dieth never. Growley holds no terror for him and eggs are a delicacy.

He loves hunting and may be seen any holiday roaming around with a gun. But he has one thing on most of us, as he knows how not to go wrong. When he is a portly gentleman of fifty we may expect that he will have bagged the big game of life.

Known to the stable sergeant as "that bloody faced guy," to the women as the "Cave Man," and to the Keydets as the "Major," he amply fulfils all these cognomens. The hardest blow was when as a sentinel on New Year's morn, he heard someone singing, "I've Got My Captain Walking For Me Now." By centering his mind upon the fair sex he survived the ordeal. He saw "Red" repeatedly, after being asked by a rat if he had any message for the bride. Ever since then, he has a hard time securing a company sponsor.

In spite of his disappointments in love, he is an aurora borealis in military affairs, and the bucks daily blush with shame when he comes strutting down the line. Hand the world the same line you have handed us, Bud, and someone will fall for it yet.

"What ho! The Guard!" cried the sentinel as this long, lean and lanky drink of water shuffled into the arch, way back in the dark ages of September, 1916. Surviving the reign of terror as a rat, he came back strong and has clung to the ship for four long years.

His capacity for food is unlimited, his only superior along this line being Tom Benners. You can find him at every hop, but don't let that fool you. He doesn't go to shake a "nasty foot"—the supper attracts him. In fact, he is the first one every time to be fed and watered, and yet the last to leave the trough.

The sight of a text-book makes him turn deathly pale. He doesn't believe in hell, 'cause it would be a foolish to have two places so much alike as barracks and the infernal regions. Utah will be his future home. Then he won't disappoint so many women.

As a rat, Henri was, well, to put it mildly, notorious among the Third Classmen. When he swam through the dark days of his rathood into the glory of being a mean Third Classman, he decided that running was useless for such as he, and accordingly set out for the opposite extreme. However, when he came back to us from his period in the army, he had suffered a change of view, and even took to wearing cuffs to "rev."

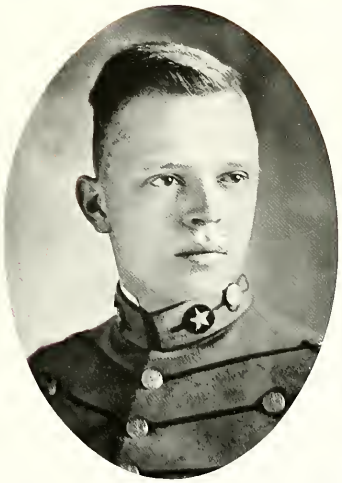

"The military" is his fetish, and he knows the I. D. R. backwards and forwards.

After much thought, he decided that Civil and Electrical were too hard, and "Arts" too easy for him, and so perforce took Chemistry. In the laboratory, his motto is "Spare the ammonia, and spoil the works," and he drives all others out of his corner.

Judge always has a ready line to sling, no matter whether there's anything in it or not, and when you get him started, he'll keep on 'till he runs down.

Early in September, 1917, this young lad wended his way from Portsmouth along the tortuous route to the sacred old town of Lexington; subsequently matriculated at V. M. I., signing various pledges and papers, the contents of which he held in total ignorance, and mechanically and unknowingly passing through sundry details of becoming a "Third Class Rat." And what is more, he traveled on a pass and has since been deluded by the usual barracks talk of a Christmas furlough for diligent and deserving keydets to such an extent that he procured a pass especially for the occasion.

According to his statements, with great effort and emotional gloom, he passed thru his year as "third class rat," leaving behind only mechanical drawings to be picked up later on. As a second classman he gladly became a disciple of "Chappie," and ever since has been an ardent reader of Ibsen, Turgenreff, Browning, Ibanez, and many other wielders of a mighty pen. Being jibed incessantly for taking the light course which affords such ample opportunity for "hayhitting" during daylight hours, has never worried him in the least, and even if he is the "only and spoiled child of indulging parents," he appropriates his spare time in digesting such instructive—and interesting—subjects as Social Psychology or the Russian language.

"Henry" began his career as a cadet with the class of '19, but the goddess Minerva decided that '20 was able to supply him with a more congenial atmosphere and thus we gained a good man in 1916. His life here has followed a path similar to the course of true love; he "bulled out" Christmas in his first third class year, was "busted" from top sergeant in his second class year, and, altho he was appointed lieutenant finals, he lost this along with the other cadet officers among the noble forty-seven in his first class year. In the company and on duty "H. O." was efficient as a matter of principle. But if you have ever talked to him in quarters, you know that there never was a finer Bolshevik at heart in the world; the sound of an exploding bomb always threw him into grandiloquent ecstacies of transcendentalism, nor was his jubilance diminished by those nerve wracking long rolls—the true test of sincerety of attitude. Those who know "Merk" also must confess he has a way with the women, and this is supplemented by his mastery of the terpsichorean art. With every confidence in your future, "Henry," we bid you good-bye, good luck. God bless you.

"Are you a German spy?" This was the first greeting extended to George when he appeared in the barracks under the thick war clouds of the early months of 1916.

As one of the famous eleven chemists in the first class, George invented a smoking pipe, which has been proved to be very sanitary, because it absorbs all nicotine from the tobacco before it's inhaled.

With such inventive talent success in life is assured. In leaving, our Alma Mater sends out a noble son to that great Republic on the other side of the Pacific to spread his spirit and fame.

This "keydet," follower sans parsille of that almighty 7.5 and visutal major domo of the art of reaching "B" Co. from II-2 in nothing flat, came thru the Main Arch in the fall of 1916, with the rest of '20. Realizing within the first few days of his servitide that one's "rat" year was no time of all times in which to create a riot or sensation "Ed" took a back seat with the rest of us to await developments—and Finals.

In his third class year before he had looked down from the mighty heights of a corporal even a month, "Crazy Ed" got a deck on the world in general and our neighbors on the other hill in particular, loaded up the Evening gun with small boulders, horse shoes, et cetera one day and let 'er rip, tearing great holes in the foliage and atmosphere and removing his coveted chevrons at the same time.

Tho a born "Artist" some one convinced him that he ought to be a follower of "Piggy" and make a famous name for himself in the Engineering field. This he started out to do but at the end of midyear exams, the lure of "Chappy" was too much for him and another good man fell by the wayside. Here, however, Ed seems to have found his calling and bids fair to become one of America's proverbial "moo" artists.

A few days after the class of '20 embarked upon its career as a third class, someone discovered a fat little molecule in one of its sections. Upon being questioned on the matter, this, replied, in a thin treble voice, that its name was "Cox, Sir." That this youthful voice would be a disgrace to the third class was immediately noticed and remedied by his kind classmates; referring him to Demosthenes as an example. With many ups and downs, "Maxes" and Penalty Tours, and incidentally visits from his ever thoughtful classmates, Eddie passed through his Rat year.

Returning next fall, it was a hard matter for him to decide upon what course to follow; but after taking another look at the number of maxes in the previous in Chemistry, he decided to become a desciple of "Old Rat." Since this time he has kept right on demonstrating that when it comes to H_2S0_4 and H_2S, he is still the same old high-brow.

Since this time Eddie has often risen to remark that all women are deceivers and "witness him" on never again. Now Eddie, in saying goodbye, we can only wish that it will be for a very short time and that during this period your worst luck will not be half so bad as your best has been.

As a "Mister" we have little to say of "Dab" because he attended to his daily "juties" in the prescribed manner but when he came to the important office of a "Corp" finals he then began to shoulder the responsibilities of his command. During his third class year his daily post was following his chin around the stoop seeing that the dumb misters walked the narrow path. His second class was interrupted (?) so to speak with a months "camouflaged Christmas furlough" at that time returning from the services of his country. But now he at last reached the top of all aspirations, getting a dip., for which no one has looked forward to more than he. Even now he has us guessing concerning the "fair sex," seeming at times to be immune to their influences and at others a little susceptible. The proper "dope" is said to be had on him now as some remarkable changes have been made lately, and it seems as if he is completely in the relentless grasp. After reporting released from "strict military discipline," he expects to settle down in the Hill City and contract a pile of long green. Whatever his choice may be it goes without saying that his efforts will certainly be realized. In closing these words, we can all say that he was a valuable asset to his class, a loyal friend and a perfect gentleman. Your many friends are looking at you, Cracker.

"Doc" came to us from Randolph-Macon where he spent two years of his career; but untainted by this "college life," he quickly entered into the true spirit of cadet life, as is evidenced by the innumerable confinements served during his period of cadetship. It was not until his first class year that he met his downfall. This came about in his cavalry career, when he began to live in mortal dread of anything that had a mane and tail. This is the only thing that anyone has ever known him to fear, and in consequence of this fear, he developed a chronic case of "gim riding," along with practically all the other members of the riding class.

During the war he enlisted in the Field Artillery and was assigned to the Central Officers' Training School at Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky, but upon the signing of the armistice, he returned to V. M. I. In parting from him, it is with genuine sorrow that we bid farewell to a true and loyal friend, who won the love, esteem and devotion of all those with whom he came in contact. By his remarkable power of concentration and his exceptional ability, combined with a most charming personality, he will gain among his fellow men a place that will reflect untold credit on his Alma Mater.

"Yes I come from the Capital City of the Volunteer State and I'm proud of it." These are the words that come some several times a day from "Doc" along with gestures of many kinds. Then starts a list of miraculous deeds accomplished out there and, although doubtful in character, they are always sworn to with the news of the N. T. and A. to back them.

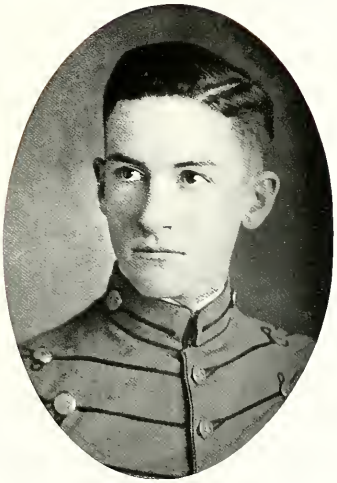

However the affliction or good luck, of coming from Tennessee has not hindered but helped this curly headed boy along at the Institute and he has been completed success in both the academic and military departments. Besides this he has made a host of friends who rate him among the best.

"Derry," as they call him, has, however, not been a complete success with the opposite sex. He first met defeat at the hands of one of Nashville's Belles and later sought solace by falling "head over heels" for one from the Tidewater section of this country, although he has never seen her for more than two hours in his life. The outcome of this affair has taken on a shadowy aspect, but still he keeps on trying to prove that "a blonde with curly locks can be a vamp" and the only requirements are that they shall not be over "T" Tall.

In spite of the fact that the experience of an older brother should have warned him against such action, Jeff came from away down in Southern Virginia and entered barracks with an irresistible desire to laugh. And laugh he did for the first few days while hidden away up in the 99 suite, a veritable rat heaven, until one of these occupants, being caught in a breach of regulations, brought the wrath of the 3rd class down upon them like a storm.

But the 1st year doesn't last forever, and the next year found this long, lean, lanky youth back, and a full fledged 2nd classman. There he threw away his life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness by deciding to study the shape of a voltage wave and also formed the disgraceful habit of displaying his unmusical talents to his roommates, much to their displeasure, at all times of day and night.

As his actions testify, Jeff thinks there are lots of things from which more fun may be derived than visiting the city of Lexington on F. C. P. and Saturday afternoons; among these joys being the privilege of riding the ponies over the hills of Rockbridge. If any camp lures him from home after receiving his diploma we are sure it will be one at which he rides when at drill and does not walk.

To look at him you would hardly guess his main ambition, namely, to play big brother to the women. During his more sunny days, when enjoying the obsolete F. C. P., Sheep made quite a point of this. In fact, when it came to dressing Christmas trees he might be termed a howling success. But after the New Year's party melt called upon to forego such pleasures, and has given it up accordingly.

Sheep lives for two things, skating and baseball, being an adept at either. His life vacillates between this and military. Enlisting in the local Marines during the war, the only thing coming between him and the bright lights of Paris (Island) was the untimely signing of the Armistice. Upon his discharge he resumed his pre-war activities and expects to be an Engineer in the very near future.

Back in the old days when Tom Dulaney played double base (it was base too) in the "Victrola" and "Big 'Uns" sold for a dime at the P. E., a lanky Greenvillain came dragging through the Arch. When accosted by the man with the red rag over his shoulder, he admitted that this cognomen was Snake and that he aimed to adopt V. M. and I. as his Alma Mater.

Two days of being At Home to mean Third classmen sufficed to impress upon his cerebrum the fact that all good little rats tacked a "Sir" on to all remarks addressed to old Keydets, finned out on the Stoops and shed their kicks at the door of their second stoop kitchens.

After he had passed the ordeal of the broomstick and had returned as a Mean Third Classman, his fondness for stokeing his puss was exceeded only by his aversion to being "rolled." It was during this phase of his hectic career that our Hero took a leading role in an alleged Bomb Outrage.

It was perhaps the tendency of casting bread upon the waters, as much as any other of his sterling qualities that earned for him his own particular niche in the affections of his classmates. However, be that as it may, when the class breezed down the aisle and lined up so Old Nick could pass 'em around, Cosmo was there with bells on. It is the universal opinion of his instructors that his intimate knowledge of why is H2SO and other abtruse problems will bring him out on top, just a "kallyhootin," and so now, all ye breatheren in Twenty, stand back and watch his smoke.

"Bud" deserted the ease and luxury of Wolford College, he says it's somewhere in South Carolina but we can't vouch for the truth of the statement, and hit the trail for V. M. I. armed only with a hay-hitting and food-taking instinct. Unable to indulge these to the best advantage while a rat he has spent he entire period since then in an attempt to make up for lost time. How he and Tom Benners can sit at the same mess and leave enough for anybody else is a problem that even "B. D." couldn't work in a thousand years.

An annual furlough or two managed to keep "Bud" from becoming a victim of the "Institute Blues" but a certain visit to the wilds of South Carolina in December of his first class year managed to effectually upset his usually peaceful frame of mind. With the exception of this single fall from grace he has managed to stay far away from the wiles of beautiful calic.

"Bud" is rather undecided as to his career, and at times thinks seriously of usurping Wallace Reid's title of the handsomest man in fildom. Whatever he undertakes, whether it is to be a job in a restaurant or the financing of much needed improvements in South Carolina, no man can doubt his success. Besides his ability as an aviator, "Andy" is quite a horseman, locking his long legs around a horse so that no animal living could dislodge him.

His high morality is the talk of the chaperon's bench— "Grinny" never descending to the level of cheek dancing.

To see him shambling along you would never expect him to set the stars on fire, but he nearly succeeded on January 1, 1920. His roman candle going just two feet higher than any other of the 47.

Stay with them "Grinny" and you'll make a fortune, and find a wife your size yet.

You know it has been said that "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread," and that is the reason "Gutsie" gives for coming here. Though he is far from feminine in appearance, he must have had fond hopes in that direction because he was the only specimen of the genus male in the Fox Croft School for females the year before he cast his fortune with those who came to the grim old barracks on "The Hill." We don't know what his ambitions are now, but he had joined the marines and signed up for the aviation camp. But the armistice was signed cutting short his career in this direction (that is, we hope it did).

Of all things though, the quickest way to get him on his ear is to try to put something over him; he prefers it the other way around. In fact there are only two things he has been known not to try to get out of, and they are—a good story in the "Cosmo" and the hay.

Aw, don't get on your ear about it!"

It was in the fall of the year 1916 that "one" P. Groover was received into our midst by the gentle, sweet and sympathizing voices of the proud wearers of the Corp. "Chevs." Little did we dream that this personage was destined to rise to the highest office in the Cadet Corps. But from the start, he gained for himself the reputation of being "the most running rat in "C" Co. As a corporal "Gonni" proved himself worthy of a real office and in his second class year we found him 1st sergeant of "F" Co., and to say that he was a hard orderly sergeant would be putting it mild. And right here is a most befitting place to say that Paul's aspirations began to turn toward other things than those of a military nature; for the call from the "fair sex" came and from the number of "sheets" that came to "suite 99," addressed to him, we became uneasy as to whether he would even spend the remainder of the year with us. But perhaps it was a passing fancy, for he decided to stick until Finals anyway.

And when the Final formation rolled around, the clear and unmistakable words came forth across the parade ground like the shot from a cannon,—"To be Captains, 'One' P. Groover." From the pinnacle of this glory he has gained the prestige and confidence of us all. A man of the highest standards and ideals, his friendship is an accomplishment, for to know him is to love him.

He appeared in the Arch one day in early September, carrying a suit case in one hand and a tobacco twist in the other. The latter was labled "The Pride of Reidsville" but we are still inclined to believe that it referred to our noble "Hunk" for no other hamlet on the map can own up to producing a similar speciman. His first ten months' sojourn with us was spent in close confinement with the "Duke of Newsoms" and in comparison with that shining light, Hunk's country bumkin appearance showed up like that of a Broadway stage-door Johnnie.

On his first visit to the Hops as a rat, Hunk fell as flat as a flounder for the entire fair sex. The "Divine Right of Love" is now his firm belief, and few can withstand that irrestible line which he has picked up from associating with that gay old deceiver, "Stud" Ripley.

He is a disciple of "Piggy"; entertaining fond ideas of remodeling roads and bridges of North Carolina to meet the requirements of construction "a' la Ollie" Anderson.

All in all, we find only one fault with Bob; he falls to sleep on the job occasionally and wakes up to find his nice biscuits all cut up into thin slices.

It was a memorable day in Backstone when this illustrious son left his native haunts to seek fame and fortune at the Virginia Military Institute. Military? That's him all over. He started "running" from his rathood, and this habit continued even when he became a first classman. After the stormy and tempestuous year at the hands of the mean third classmen, he entered the much smoother waters of old cadetship. As a second classman his latent talents came to the fore and after a short while he became truly a marvel in the art of signalling. His ability in this respect was quickly recognized and, as a first classman, he was made cadet instructor in this branch of the military course. Although he is an able disciple of "Monk," as an Electrical Engineer, it is not at all improbable that he will become a painter, because of an intimate knowledge of colors, and especially of a certain shade of Brown. When the time arrives for us to leave the old Institute, we say goodbye, (tho we hope for only a short while), to one whose friendship cannot be valued too highly. Francis, we admire you for what you are and honor you for what you will be. May you be ever favored by the gods, as you have established yourself in the hearts of us all.

Yes, it's from Louisiana. That we know, also that he started his career with an aim to be the Biggest Dog in Barracks and the most worthy follower of "Chappie." We know by the number of wedding invitations he has received, bearing the same postmark which used to be upon the "Pink Sheets" he was wont to receive daily, that he has been unsuccessful in the former. And we know that he has been very successful in the latter by the stars that adorn his sleeves, and his ability as a past master in the "Art of the Artists."

George possesses a most fluent "line," and proved his ability to get by with almost anything when, dressed in a Keydet uniform, and wearing his first class cape turned back so that the red lining showed up to best advantage, he casually sauntered into the lobby of the Seelbach Hotel in Louisville Kentucky, and on encountering a first Lieutenant of the Field Artillery, and being questioned by the said Lieutenant as to the nationality of the uniform he wore, calmly smoked his cigarette, assumed his characteristic nonchalant pose and proceeded to inform and convince the Lieutenant that he was an officer in the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police.

"Sunshine" informs us that after many years of "College" life he is to be a lawyer of great fame. We have no doubt of his success, that line of his will get him by at anything.

"Will" blew in on the trail of a Southwester from the Great State, filled with ambition and hay. After undergoing the usual trials of a rat his personality withstood the many tribulations thrust upon him and emerged triumphant. His return to the Lone Star State was preceded by a telegram which put Caesar's triumphal message to Rome, far in the shade. It read like an extract from a patriotic song: "Stars and Stripes are mine."

The stripes have staid with him through thick and thin but the stars died a hard death when he elected to become a disciple of "Piggy." We don't blame them at all, because no self respecting stars would want to find themselves in the possession of an engineer.

He is undecided as to his future, being divided between a desire to pursue his studies in civil at some large university, and a wish to gain some practical experience. Whatever it turns out to be we are sure of his success. Good luck old man, may your Roof never leak and your Bridge never fall.

In practically all of the graduating classes of this institution there is at least one representative of the "Local Boys." John claims the distinction of being a member of this class and well has he lived up to their noble traditions and attainments, except in his ability to obtain a furlough and in his attempts at being a "Big Dog," in both of which his efforts have been wholly unsuccessful; the latter, however, does not seem to be a cause of much worry in his young life.

He is sorely afflicted with an acute case of "laziness" but this cannot be held against him to any great extent as such an attainment seems to be common to all of those who choose to follow the life of an "artist."

But, nothwithstanding these minor failures, he has proven himself of marked ability and is indeliby stamped with that key of success—perseverance—and if he ever determines to do a thing, that thing will be done in spite of all obstacles.

Thru his ability he has been an officer in the cadet battalion for two years and thru his charming personality he has won the friendship and good will of the entire corps. It is with genuine sorrow that we see his period of cadetship drawing to a close.

Say, have you ever heard about that brave band, the noble forty-seven! Well here is one of its members, the only original "Hawk." He came to us from Huntington, W. Va. where he took part in high school athletics and after the shock of his rat days he has made V. M. I. a worthy athlete. "Hawk" campaigned with the basketball team for two years and the varsity football for one. His playing was of the highest order and he never failed to put all he had into the game. Howard journeyed to Camp Taylor with the rest of us and says that while "Old Taylor" was all right, those week ends in Louisville were better. "Hawk" is a chemist by name and nature but from all indications we feel that the romance attached to the life of a traveling salesman will suit him better. He says that he is going to pull off a big deal in Philadelphia about the time that our team hits Penn. next year, and from the way things look now we don't see how he can miss. Whatever it may be old boy, we all hope that your sevens and elevens all come on the first shot and that the others come afterwards; and we know that you will keep the "dice" rolling in the future as you have in the past. "Jew" came to us as a third class rat in the fall of 1917. Altho his first year served only to prove to him, as well as to everyone else, that he was not a shining light in military affairs, he returned in the autumn of 1918 to demonstrate that he was an "Aurora Borealis" of a Liberal Artist. In accord with his true artist character, he obtained the soft job of mail-carrier, but was quickly "busted" from this for satisfying his ever pressing hunger while the O. D. was looking on. He paid dearly by touring in front of barracks every Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday for several weeks.

Pursuing his course as an artist, "Wang" was back again in 1919 for his first class year, in order to get the full benefit of V. M. I. But, alas! he was among the forty-seven who were deprived of all privileges for firing a roman candle, blank cartridge, or some other "death-dealing" weapon on the night of December 31-January 1. The "Senator" is a great one for arguments and if you stay with him you are bound to lose. When you do give up he will quit arguing but he won't stop talking, so leave him alone.

"Jew," we know you will "knock them for that proverbial row" when you get out in the world and success is bound to be yours. Here's looking at you, "Pony Boy," and hoping that you will learn to ride a horse before you pass to the next world.

History tells us that Napoleon was exceedingly short in stature. If there is any truth in this, "Fish" resembles him in at least one particular. During his four years of toil, trouble, trial and tribulation, "The Herring" has been more or less entangled in many plots and plans detrimental to the general peace of the Institute. His debut was made in a famous egg fight when he was a rat and the climax was reached as a member of "the noble Forty-seven."

"Fish" reflected great credit upon himself and his family when he elected to become a devotee of the Arts. The difficulties offered by Russian authors and the exponents of Psychology have held no terrors for him.

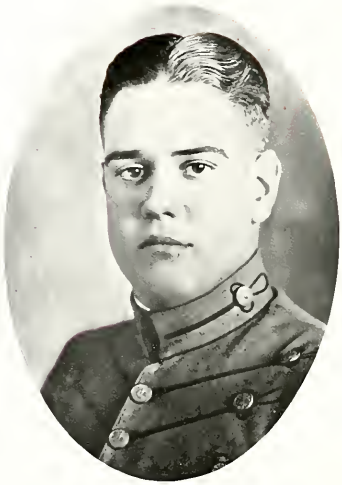

His sojourn at Camp Taylor developed his great love for horses and his experiments in equitation during his first class year were aided by a folding ladder which he always carried in his blouse.

Though supposedly a citizen of Mississippi, Fish seems to take an unusual interest in the state of Alabama, and his life seems a barren waste when he cannot count one pink sheet from that part of the country in his daily mail. There is only one conclusion to be drawn, that he intends to pick up his better half and recover the '20 hardware he sent in that direction at an early date.

And in future years we will all be borrowing money from the financier who will be just able to reach to the top of his glass-topped, mahogany desk "down in Ole Miss."

You would hardly think that the owner of this handsome photo hails from the wilds of the Blue Grass, and to be exact his address in Hoges' Station, outside of Jett, four miles from Frankfort, which sports electric lights and street cars. Neither would one guess that he is the champion heavyweight of the age; he has also won more pie eating contests than any other man in Hoges' Station, Ky.

A more persevering lover than Charlie never graced these walls. Every night since he was been a Rat he takes forth pen and ink to try and place himself in the good graces of one in a far pastoral country. As an athlete our hero stuck with the football team as a scrub for four years, playing on the class team in every contest. As a Mexican athlete he is also the peer of all in the class. He is the center of all class room debates and is seldom silenced.

The success of this volumn largely depends on his perseverance and hard work. Charlie expects to take up scientific farming and it can be well assured that he will be a wonderful success, as all fat men love to sit and watch the crops grow. His good spirits and jovial nature have made him everybody's friend and the wishes of all in the school go out with him for a long and successful career.

First Call for D. R. C. sounds, and "Monk" begins to shave. If he does it sooner he will be boned for beard on face. Surely this little guy was born for a life of luxury, for it must be confessed that he likes late hours with a little hay in between. Breakfast means nothing to him and Taps he never heeds, drawing or reading until the wee sma' hours of the morning. As a rat the Old Cadets would ask our "Monk" why he was so chesty; as a Mean Third Classman the newly cadets had to suppress an inclination to request him to bring his face from behind the bushes.

His stunts range all the way from eating peanuts in the Zoo to scratching himself. With the exception of his inability to swing by his tail, he is a living proof that Darwin was right. From a study of his church attendance we conclude that he is possessed of Hebrew instincts.

He isn't electrical by nature even though his storage batteries keep supplying juice after his dynamo has run down. Let him once get his hooks on that elusive dip and he will hie himself back to the land of his nativity; there he hopes to rake in the "long green" galore.

The above bare statement of facts would be a fit and cherished epitaph to go on any "Keydet's" service record. But his virtues and accomplishments do not stop with those mentioned above and those who have known him for four years can attest to his ability as a leader of men. His efforts as a class officer have been of infinite value to the class in its many trials and tribulations and he has never started anything that he didn't finish—and finish well.

"Jeff" has been directly responsible for the success of the hops this year, tho he did have the habit of using his whistle to the unfair advantages of the rest of us on those "special extras." In this last year, as Second Lieutenant and Quartermaster, he did remarkably efficient work in the "H's" with the assistance of his capable staff consisting of "Doe" Henty, "Dooley," "Cosine," and "Julius" Bibbs.

"Ned" has the habit peculiar to all "running" Cadets of telling the authorities exactly what he thinks, despite the fact that he often takes the view directly opposite theirs. He is a man through and through and any class is to be congratulated on having one such as he. Loved by many, admired and respected by all, we cannot help but feel that his success in after life will parallel his accomplishments here.

His hair has been getting fewer and far-betweener ever since his arrival but "Weyum" still persists in trying everything from soap and water to electric vibrators.

"Bill" acted in haste and repented in the few moments of leisure allowed him when he decided upon Chemistry as his path to fame and fortune.

"Weyum's" most noted accomplishment was due to the fact that he was able to go anyone at least one better on any subject no matter whether he had ever heard of the question under discussion, or was forced to draw upon his powers of clairvoyancy and unequaled imagination. His tales are of a marvelous degree of ingenuity and, though his audience is skeptical in the extreme, he gains credit for being able to silence any member of the corps when weird tales are the order of the day.

He may turn out to be the greatest specialist in the country, or the most dependable family physician in his locality, but his many admirable traits will prove to be the best prescriptions at the command of anyone in gaining new additions to the long list of those who are proud to call him friend.

Julian has many accomplishments: the main ones being his magnetic influence over his fellow cadets (and may it be also stated that many of the fair damsels that are wont to grace the hops, are well within his magnetic scope), the sportsman-like spirit that very few attain, and a personality that holds him in the highest esteem and respect of every Cadet in the Institute. For two years he has led the class thru' trials and tribulations, always on the top.

Our worthy President intends to enter the tobacco business after a year or so in some University. His classmates can well picture him with a large wad of "Natural Leaf" in his jaw several years from now, tho' his first attempt was a gross disaster. He is a jack of all trades, being able to take any thing to pieces from a Victrola to a Generator; thus being technically inclined, his lot was cast with "Monk," and he has become adept in running down elusive electrons and vanishing volts. His remarkable ability in the manipulation of vectors, bordering upon the uncanny, has planted him firmly in the hearts of the little man with the "Spees."

"Chappie's" only cross seems to be "Boots and Saddles;" at this drill he is wont to dismount frequently without command. We believe this is due to his absent-mindedness; that is, forgetting he has been discharged from the Marine Aviation Corps.

It is not necessary for us to wish him success in life for he has proved to us, by his unlimited ability the determination, that no set goal is impossible; therefore we can only wish him God-speed and happiness through life's battles.

As a mail orderly he came to control the happiness of the second class by dolling out the prized letters from home at 10 o'clock C. P., thereby fortifying the recipient against the wrath of professors, or making such things mere trifles as compared with the disappointment over not receiving letters due by all the laws of probability.

As military secretary to the Commandant in his first class year he was constantly consulted by the victims of circumstances, about the punishment due them under the new progressive scale of penalties whereby the 10th offense for smoking is 16 months Restricted Limits, 128 confinements, and confiscation of smoking material. Excused from all drills but Cavalry, it was his proud boast that first stand in C. D. R. exams testified to his ability (?)as a horseman.

"Oyster" found the monotony of barracks existence a sharp contrast to the fast life of gay "Paree" but like the rest of us he passed through his "rat" year quietly, altho disgustedly. His rebellious nature, however, became only too evident in his second year and expressed itself for the most part in a number of midnight adventures and holiday celebrations. His persistence in pleasure seeking was undiminished by his enlistment in the U. S. M. C. and his "devil dog" doings only sharpened his antipathy for all things military and for every regulation of discipline. But it remained for his first class year to bring out the real "Bolshevik" tendencies in "Sausage." No one enjoyed more than he, the sound of an exploding bomb or any of the other escapades of the third class. No one experienced such ecstatic enjoyment in the performance of his duty as a member of the Noble 47, as did "Monk" at 12:01 on the morning of January 1, 1920. Even his serious thoughts are pervaded with ideas of pleasure, so if you are ever looking for "Epp," seek him in one of the big electrical concerns of naughty New York City.

There was added to the despondency of his rat days the overwhelming prospect of a future course in "Civil." The following year, even too young to go to camp or to join the renowned S. A. T. C. he had the doubtful recompense of being Sergeant Major, and with the readjustment of things he managed to hold down a sergeantcy. During his first class year he proved his capabilities as a Civil Engineer by being first aid to "Oley" Anderson in surveying the White farm and the new athletic field, thereby piling up so many hours of credit that he was able to defy even the progressive scale of penalties. A quiet model youth whose only hindrance to zero demerits was the habit of taking frequent chances of being late returning on F. C. P.

Here it is. A beaming smile, and not a single hair out of its place. This last feat is "Rose-Bud's" greatest pride and joy. Who will ever know how long it took to discipline that last contrary hair and how many lates he has run, due to putting on a last few touches before leaving for every formation?

Yet appearances are often deceiving, as in this case. Beneath that simple brow there lurks a massive brain—sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde affairs. 'Rosie" is a hell-cat when he gets wound up. Unfortunately, he was once bitten by a Devil Dog while unwinding, thereby necessitating the Pasteur Treatment for Hydrophobia.

His main "ambish" is to "jazz" things electrically when he leaves this Hall of Shame.

Altho not cut out for a military career, "Squirrel" has survived four years in the House of Honor and is now ready to take up his former existence. His first two years were uneventful, but by means of the Kaiser's abdication and our consequent demobilization Squirrel pulled a camouflaged Christmas furlough during the third. That began his career of Bolshevism, for upon returning he shifted from Engineering to the Arts. Then came a period of uneventful routine but this could not last forever. Upon the organization of that variegated band, the Noble 47, he became a confirmed member and has so remained.

His main ambition is to see a woman twice without falling for her, and, to gain this end, he expects to travel extensively. So if you are ever in the Orient and see a tobacco store with a familiar name drop in and he will welcome you with that ever present smile and ingrowing dimple.

The above named product blew in, "receed" for first corporal, direct from John Marshall High School Cadet Corps. He promptly proceeded to spoil all of his chances by entering the third class.

In due time he became a sergeant and for a while held everything from that to a bevo cadet lieutenant. Women hold no charms for him, however he "vamps" them all with his classic exhibitions of terpsichorean art.

His principle faults are speed, dignity, and conscientiousness. The combination of these with ability and the willingness to work until he sees the job well done has enabled him to make a success of his course in Civil Engineering. '20 expects the same from you later in life, Frank.

The fame of "Spottanburg" has never been in doubt since the moment "Monty" donned his first pair of long trousers, filled his trunk with pennants, silk shirts, and pillow cases ready to enjoy the pleasures of college life at the Institute. As a rat "Monk" gained a great deal of attention on account of his more or less military bearing. After successfully navigating the perils of his third class year Walter faced the future with the wish for better things and manfully turned his back on the past, and the few deficient subjects it held.

Having reached the turning point of his career at V. M. I. his lot was cast with Chappie's Liberal Artists, probably with the hope of improving his assertions on "The Greater Love." The "Love Tales of Hoffman" cannot compare with "Monk's" Munchausen-like adventures in the same realm. He holds the uncontested record for rapid-fire episodes of this character, and each one seems fairer than the last. Seen in action at the hops he is incomparable, and his correspondence list contaiints many additions after each one.

It is the firm opinion of the host of friends "Monty" has won at V. M. I. that he will devote his many talents not in one line of endeavor but in many and that each will prove an unquestioned success.

Horace signed away his freedom in September, 1915, for four years he then thought, but now he has decided it takes five years to get the full benefit of the Institute. Having been so advised by the "Local Boys," he was a "running mister" and was rewarded with a corporal. After ten months as "number 4" he decided he would get a new start, so he began his Third Class year all over again. Not being a member of the Z. D. C., his cherished chevrons were removed after seven months of his second go-round for excess demerits and he began the life of a private in the ranks, which isn't such a hard life after all.

In his second class year he attained the ambition of many and became the "little drummer boy" of the corps, making the irksome march to and from the Messhall a pleasure. Thus he slipped through his second class year, bursting into his long hoped for first class year, like the rosy dawn.

All went smoothly for "Horrible" until he was pursuaded by that horrid combination to enter the pyrotechnical celebration staged for the arrival of 1920. He carried thru his part of the program as arranged and led the "Old Yell for '20" which ended up the night's performance. Just like the rest of the "Noble 47" he took his medicine, as bitter as it was, and again became accustomed to penalty tours and confinements, and in return has been rewarded by now being able to call himself "a graduate of the V. M. and I."

The exotic adjectives, "irrestible," "impulsive," "cheeky," applied so promiscuously to this favorite son of Suffolk fall far short of the mark when it comes to describing our Jack. He attracts the attention of everything from the cradle to the grave; in trousers, skirts, or neither, from near or far. In fact such are his attractions, detractions, and oddities that the usual classic remark for a new calic watching parade is, "who is that little chubby Captain with the right oblique nose?" Be it said for him that if she is worthy of his steel he has never yet failed to give her all the information she asked for and a little more besides.

From a professor of the Terpsichorean art in Suffolk he developed into a past master of jazz at our hops, with going so far in producing invocations as to gain the title of the "Galloping Hession." Be it said for him, however, that he falls short of the title in one respect-such was his savior faire—that he never lost his head, which is indeed remarkable in view of the many feminine hearts he caused to flutter.

His friendship is a valued, if uncertain quantity, and thanks to the warmth of his nature his true friends are many and loyal. Owing to his aforementioned irresistible qualities we have no doubt that in life's mad whirl he'll never fail to take down the barbed wire garters on all occasions, even though it should come to mining coal in Bluefield.

Behold a man who believes he can fool the whole world by keeping silent and thus having it said of him—"Still water runs deep." "The Royal Long-Tired Odysseus" of Homer's dreams had nothing on him if you will only listen to his troubles.

Prim and precise as an old maid in his room, he bears up the traditions of the First Class Privates by being a "Bolshevik" in appearance, and according to Our Major Bud, his habitually untrimmed whiskerettes and unshined shoes are the one note of discord in the front rank of "B" Company.

Whenever the "Walrus" has his turn at the wash basin, he makes the front room look like the high seas, and his greatest disappointment was the time he saw a cavalry horse shove his whole muzzle into the trough and blow, thus establishing a record that even he has been unable to equal .

At present his goal is an engineering position in some wild country where he can wear hip boots with spurs a foot long.

"Jack" hails from the "Magic City" and, despite this fact, he's proved himself an all right sort of a fellow. One of the biggest mistakes of his life was made at the end of his third class year when he failed to avail himself of the opportunities of obtaining an education and, instead of taking Liberal Arts, he decided to listen to "R. B." three times a day. Right now, tho' full of bridge designs and such things, he is further advanced in the art of "shooting the bull" than even the best of "Chappie's" disciples. It is hard to imagine what "Twee" would be today if he had taken the dialetic course. As it is he is capable of carrying on a fluent conversation with anybody from "Fannie Dooley" on up.

"Bird" has been a worthy successor to the far-famed cheer leaders of yore, namely "Bobbie" Bond and "Jimmy" Thompson, and it is rumored that our teams were not the only features which attracted the huge mobs to the games played in Roanoke this year. The boy is talented too; he sings, plays the piano about as well, and is an exponent of the most modern terpsichorean art—using Jack Honore's Oleaqua both in—and externally.

"Jack" has been a class officer and has been one of the leading factors in pulling the class thru' its many trials and tribulations. Always jovial, he has made himself one of the most popular men in school and his pleasing personality will be missed by us all next year.

A sense of humor saves many a situation, and in four years at V. M. I. there is many a situation to be saved. Many a time when it seemed like a case of "all's lost save honor" to those of us cursed with a serious turn of mind it was only a case of "all's lost save humor" with "Pousse" and just so many times have peals of laughter and a beaming countenance informed us that he had nabbed the ray of sunshine that was to lift us all out of the ditch.

Don't be misled, however, by this jovial exterior to think that he is but a child of pleasure, for a long look into those dark brown eyes give a hint of depths unplumbed, though we suspect the fair sex has been given more opportunities to solve their mysteries than fellow "keydets" less susceptible to his blandishments.

Through all the turmoil of Bolsheviki ideas, he remains true to his colors and standards. His opinion is one to be respected, for when all the rest of us have finally reached a conclusion through tortuous arguments and reasoning we look to "Pousse" lackadaisically smoking his pipe in the corner and find that was what he had been thinking all day.

"Cap'n Tex" Potts in the fall of 1917 advised Old Nick that he was going to give the Institute a trial. He displayed great indignation at the outset because he was not allowed to have his pet rattle snake in barracks but was slightly appeased when the Commandant assigned him to the same room as Squaw Baby Davis.

On entering the second class he decided to follow Chappie thru the liberal arts, the most liberal of these being that of sleeping anywhere, anytime, and thru anything. He also aspired to, and won the high rank of sergeant in this year, and there is no doubt that his efficiency in "B" Company won it the cup that year. This efficiency is proved by the fact that the Kaiser abdicated almost immediacly upon "Mo's" arrival at Camp Taylor, where he hoped to secure a Second Lieutenant in the Field Artillery.

In his first class year he joined the Royal Order of O. G.'s, in which organization he did very commendable work until he resigned to join the Noble Forty-seven, this being the last organization in which he figured.

Morton is known to us as a loyal and true friend, and his pleasing personality and constant genial disposition have won the respect and admiration of all who have known him.

Upon making the great discovery that he could listen to a Chemistry Lecture without going to sleep, and in addition, that he could combine his ideas of chemistry and bolshevism successfully, our hero (?) could see no other course than Chemical Engineering. To what his success as a highbrow has been due we have not discovered, since he has been known to ask repeatedly the difference between the duties of the Officer of the Guard and the Quarter Guard sentinel.

He is very fond of walking, especially Sunday afternoon, and is often seen wending his way toward East Lexington. He is the composer of many "odes to Venus." He once narrowly escaped being drowned in his own music, and now plays the "Vic" constantly. His principal object in life is to learn the art of keeping two flames burning for him at the same time. In this he has partially succeeded, due to the able assistance of Burger's book on "How to make Love." His principal setback occurred when several at Sweet Briar compared notes, and found that he used the same line for all.

Billy joined us in our rodent days. During this joyful and care-free year he decided 'twas best to let all natural inclinations take a back seat and only show that side of us that "rats" are supposed to show, i. e., a silent voice and a "running" attitude, hence, when Finals came, he was one of the high and mighty corporals that thinks a First Captain hasn't even a look-in when they're considered—Sic Semper Coporalis.

"Cutie" managed to eke out a fair existence until his second class year when he fell under the wiles of "Piggy"—and thereby hangs a tale.

With an overpowering weakness for "les femmes," Billy can be found most any night either in that characteristic pensive mood of the "enamoured" or else tearing off that hound sheet to "her;" while Roofs and Bridges, not to mention the other worries that "Piggology" causes a weak mind, lay crest-fallen and neglected by the wayside. But even with these inborn traits that try to pull a good man down —"Sometimes a man's a man for -a'-that," as the poets say, and in closing here's looking at you, Billy, for there's a reserved seat in this game of life for you, right down on the "bald-headed" row!

In that awkward year of our rathood, one, walking down the ranks of "F"' Co., might have seen "finning out" with the rest of us, a medium-sized youth with reddish hair, hook-nose, smiling eyes, and good looks. That was "Freddie," the "Freddie" that was destined to live with us the remainder of our years at V. M. I., and to pass through the mill of everlasting friendship, to the end. In his passage through the gruelling and weeding cogs of the machinery he has ever won fame for himself, beginning by securing 1st stand in his third class year and a sergeantcy in "F"' Co. As soon as possible after America's entrance into the World War Freddie left the Institute to cast his lot with those patriotic men who were sacrificing all for their country and entered the Field Artillery Officers' Training School at Camp Taylor, Ky. Upon the close of the war he returned to V. M. I. and resumed his studies and duties as a sergeant. Such a personality as his is hard to describe, for it is not the personality of one man, but the personalities of several men, merged into one. In this combination, he has held on to those qualities which have made him what he is, the truest of friends, the most steadfast to duty, and a brilliant and enjoyable companion, who has won the hearts of both "keydet" and "ealie."

Ladies and gentlemen, if you can behold these liquid orbs long enough to listen to my tale, we will attempt to give you some information on the subject. Hailing from the Capitol City, he is widely known as "one of the local boys" and reputed to move in the "highest social strata." He underwent his rathood as any ordinary mortal and so attained the exalted position of an old cadet. He had his experience holding the reins of authority as a sergeant but decided he had rather cast his lost with the common herd as everyone does sooner or later, and he gained a wide reputation as a mail-carrier during his second class year, when all the recipients of letters had to journey to his room while he, as an artist playing true to his colors, early showed his preference for hay. Another item—he has grown and risen from company to company, trying a different one each year, and this bodily expansion was in co-operation with a likewise spiritual development which reaches out as a magnet and "grapples friends to him with hoops of steel." His cup of life is overflowing with the milk of human kindness and all who so desire are welcome to drink to their heart's content.

This young Texan can't be described very well in such a brief sketch—it would take a volume to enumerate his many and varied traits, but, for those who know him, a sketch is not necessary and you who haven't this honor will have to use your imagination.

During "Coyotes" four years at the Institute he received one letter only from a "calic," hence not having the usual "keydets" diversion at hand he passed the time "jigging" and "fiddling." He can play his fiddle for hours on a stretch, to his roommates grief, and he can clog dance till the ceiling falls, and he can expound theories till he's blue in the face, to say nothing of his unlucky adversary.

However when his faithful fiddle is laid up for repairs he has been occasionally seen studying, and this, combined with an unusual amount of grey matter, has enabled him to pass Civil Engineering, a feat which speaks for itself.

In other words, he is a gay jolly blase youth with just the right amount of seriousness, and it is with more than the usual amount of regret that his friends, the entire corps, bid him adieu.

He entered the Air Service in 1917 and returned last year to get another crack at that "dip" and joined '20 in her race toward the goal. Hunt has been one of the mainstays of the football squad for four years and his presence will be missed in the future. A more running man never graced these walls, his knife-like creases are one of the features of the Institute always pointed out to strangers.

Turner had every reason to believe that he had proved the exception to the feeling of insignificance common to most "Rats" when, on his second day, he encountered an F. Company sergeant on a portion of the 4th stoop considered sacred to the presence of old cadets only, while further distinction came when all were caused to marvel whether in "finning out" he sought the mechanical advantage of an unbalanced center of gravity.

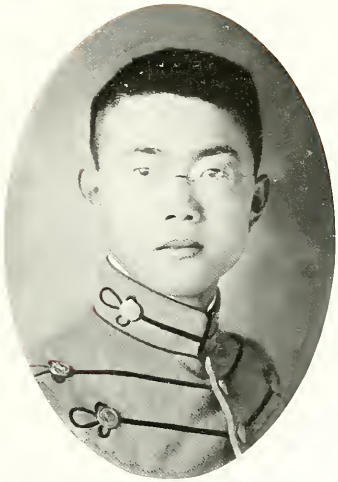

His expressed reason for choosing C. E. over L. A. was a disinclination to entirely forego the distinction between reveille and taps, but he has lived to a bitter realization that the other extreme is certainly not without its advantages.

As a first classman his eagerness to guard the Institute on any of three days with a consequent absence to Cavalry is ample proof of the realization of a limitation which he frankly admitted under trying circumstances, to the Lt. Col., in the strongest of terms.

Moved to emulate the achievements of others of our kind who here serve as examples in khaki; he hopes to serve as a Provisional Second Lieutenant in the Engineers before returning to the coal mines of his native town, the birthplace of "Stonewall" Jackson, from which many are to be enticed to this, his best loved home.

The above creature is a rare specimen of second class "rat," who was imported directly from the far off Celestial land of China. While but a meek rat, Charles appreciated the full value of hay, therefore enlisting with the rest of those second class artists and became a famous desciple of old Chappy, the V. M. I. sage. Perhaps Warpling will never forget his first year at V. M. I., especially those kind greetings rendered to him by the friendly third classmen.

Charles has succeeded in whatever he has undertaken. We know his ambition and sincerity will enable him to become one of the future leaders of the great Republic of China.

Look him over; Sir Isaac Newton has nothing to put this mathematical genius to doing. In fact after listening to him talk for half an hour (if such a thing is possible) one would think that the latter would be ashamed of some of the theories he advanced.

His chief faults are the mandolin, singing, and the attraction for the fair sex around Franklin. The last may seem a mystery to some, but from all indications seems to be true. While Uncle Sam was in the midst of the Great Struggle, Lieutenant "Esky" served in every capacity from a lance corporal to a Bevo Lieutenant at the Institute while waiting his call to the "Heavies." One of his greatest worries is whether to return to Newsoms or Franklin and take up his "daily duties." But whatever he does we know that he will continue with the determination to carry it through to a finish.

"Zeke" from "Ty Ty," a little piece of dirt down in Georgia, causes us to doubt the integrity of the report "that everything is peaches" that hails from that state. In spite of this shortcoming, however, his vicissitudinous career at the Institute is really a subject of interest. As a rat he was characterized by his intrepid front when accosted by the adverse third classmen. As a bomb thrower his practical jokes on the commandant were subjects of great amusement to everyone but himself and his unfortunate roommate "Cosmo."

At the hops (Sub having spotted him cold).

Sub.—"Are'nt you under restrictions?"

A. H. H. (despairingly)—"Yes, sir."

Sub.—"Report to your room under arrest."

A. H. H. (undertone)—"Hard but square, quoth the monkey."

In spite of the high potential difference once existing between "E. J." and our local anthropoid, he decided to sip the CURRENTS of the Pierian Spring. In spite of his technical endowments, however, his editorial accomplishments have clearly demonstrated to the artists that literary ability is only a side issue of the engineer. As the old bones of fortune have "Snake-eyed" so consistently during the past four years for him, the best that we can wish him is that his future "passes" will speedily reduce his Nemesis to her last shekel.

"Witness this 'E' men!"
"Wake me up at first call."

"Bill"—this tall son of North and South, was one of the initial members of '20 and since his "Rat" year has been looked up to by everyone. Perhaps one reason for this is that he rivals "Burks" in the number of his ancestors, as he claims kin with everyone in Virginia from Pocahontas to "Labby Jim."

This reserved young man passed his first three years at the Institute without a single demerit, but on attempting to run lights to correspond with a certain young lady he was caught, and this variation from the straight and narrow path admitted him to the ranks of those who really enjoy V. M. I. life.

"Willie" has the distinction of having more nicknames than any man in barracks, but for every name he has a good trait which we are sure will carry him to success in the oncoming conflict with the world, if not with women. He was not attracted to the latter until his First Class year, but from all indications he has more than succeeded in making up for lost time.

"Stein's" motto has always been, "Good women, fast horses, and a julep on the side." Of these he has generally proved a good judge, though with exceptions. However eight or nine trips in football and basketball have improved his judgment, if not his discretion, in respect to the above.

During his entire period of cadetship "Bill" has been a leader, and that he will so continue in later life we have no doubt.

"I am going to do it, so I suppose you will."

FIRST CLASS

IT WAS back in the dark ages of nineteen sixteen when silk socks sold for forty cents a pair and when all the automobiles that Lexington sported were a couple of Fords and a "Liberty Brush," that the class of Nineteen Twenty first made their debut to the profession of "Arms" and had their introduction to mess hall "Growley". They were days lived in a trance for most of us, but true to the theories of time and tide, the year rolled by and left us no longer the hated stepchildren of the Corps but real, hard third classmen.

The third class year passed as all do, with bombs and other disorders of all natures, surrendering fully to the call of the wild, endeavoring to leave the impression that we were the next hardest thing to nails in the community.

After the passing of the underclassmen's trials we returned to take up the more serious duties of Second Classmen. Due to the unsettled conditions caused by the war times, many of our classmates who were of age, enlisted in the summer, and before the cessation of hostilities "Twenty" had nearly fifty men in the service. Later in the year nearly all returned and the class was reunited again. During this period officers were made from the Second Class and they carried out their duties like soldiers. After the acquisition of the coveted rings the big aim was for each and every man to obtain the cherished "Dip."

Once more the Lexington Special pulled into the Rockbridge Metropolis and deposited its load in September, and among the number were nearly all of the old class to take up the duties of First Classmen, the highest honor in the Institute. The fall of the year rounded out beautifully, with a highly successful Football season and a Victorious Thanksgiving Day. But there's many a slip between the cup and the lip, and it happened on New Year's night, when the dismal clock in the tower tolled the hour of midnight—Bedlam broke loose; the fires of Babylon or the fall of Tyre and Sidon could not have created as much noise and illumination. Fire works of all description and other forms of explosions tore loose and amid the melee came a rousing cheer for the New Year and the Class of Nineteen Twenty.

But as one old sage quotes, "You'll neither pick roses off thorns nor figs off thistles," so the reaper began to harvest the punishment of youthful folly. No hops, no freedom, no more to strut decked in the regal plush of an officer, but to carry that rusty musket until the Authorities see fit to reinstate. It is a bitter pill, but it is a bad sportsman that does not take his punishment with a smile and a good nature. We see our mistake, so beware ye all who follow.

In athletics "Twenty" furnished a good portion, Bacharach, Hawkins, Benners and Turner represented us in Football and Bacharach and Hawkins regulars on the Basketball quint.

For Officers Jordan and Jeffries were chosen to lead, after three years of conscientious service; no better men could have been picked.

The days are few until we will say good bye to these walls and go out into life as citizens. It is hard to think that we could have lowered ourselves in the estimation of our Officers by the New Year's Spree, and we have determined to stick out the punishment and do our duty in such a manner that before Finals there will be no more restrictions, and endeavor to leave a record that any V. M. I. man could be proud of and to reflect nothing but credit on our Alma Mater.

SECOND CLASS

IN the fall of the year 1917, there assembled at the Institute, for the first time, a crowd of men who are now the present Second Class. The Class today does not comprise all those frightened "newly" cadets who matriculated together. Many of them have been called to other fields, but the great majority has stayed and has fought onward until it now finds itself within sight of the celebrated goal, for which many have striven and fewer have attained, namely the right to call oneself a First Classman.

It is useless to discourse on the trials and tribunals of the "Rat" year. Every man, from the very start, seemed to have the idea of doing his best, so things went on very smoothly, as is usual in the year when one is a New Cadet.

When the Class of '21 came back as Third Classmen, there was a firm desire in the hearts of all to uphold all the traditions laid down by preceding third classmen. Every man had the spirit of "do it, or get busted trying." It was done.

The Third Class officers consisted of Pate as president and Dickson as vice-president. During this year of 1918 and 1919, there was much unrest due to the war conditions, and many new trials and problems which were unprecedented were met with. It is the opinion of everyone that these difficulties were met fairly and squarely, and overcome.

In this, the Second Class year, we assembled, bound together more closely than ever before by the ties of friendship which originated back in '17.

At the first class meeting, Pate was re-elected president and McCuistion was chosen to hold down the office of vice-president. With two such men at the head, it is an aforegone conclusion that this year will add to the glory of the class.

On December 1st the class rings were put on, and some have stayed put and some have not. Plans have already been formulated for the other outstanding feature of the Second Class year, namely the Final Ball. If these plans do not miscarry, a brilliant function is to be expected. Clarkson and Greathead were chosen leaders of this year's social affairs.

In the other fields of scholastic endeavor the men of '21 have been prominent.

In football, Dickson, Smith, J. T., Mason, Stuart, Ingram, and Wilson, W. Y., were awarded gold footballs, while Leech and Shipley received monograms. Leech was unanimously elected captain for the coming year.

On the basketball team the Second Class was represented by Leech, Lee, and Stuart, with Lee as the recipient of a gold basketball.

The baseball and track teams have more than a proportional representation of Second Classmen.

Such is the history of the class of 1921 and it is to be expected that the men who started the ball to rolling so merrily back in 1917 will keep the good work up until the end.

THIRD CLASS

"Ye Keydets of old V. M. I.
Who love your Alma Mater,
Whose Spirits spread for eighty years,
Upon the land and water;
Your glorious spirit now renew,
And listen to the story
Of how the class of Twenty-two
Bids fair to join your ranks of fame and glory."

KIND READER! Have you ever had a two months vacation seem as two weeks? Now that is just how our first summer furlough passed by. Hardly had we broken in our new cordovans when we found ourselves on the Lexington Limited (to two coaches) bound for oh — — the dear old barracks.

We will leave it to all you old Cadets from '39 to '21 that it is sure one grand and glorious feeling to get back to the one dear spot to every alumnus, and greet your fellow cadets and especially your classmates. Now just what is at the bottom of all this more brotherly love? Other schools have "School Spirit"; but show us one that has that old "V. M. I. Spirit." Traditions and environments have a great deal to do with it but most of all in our opinion is the one fact that we all went thru a year of hardships together. We thank the Lord that our class is among those who were handled as men and not as mollycoddles during the "Rat year." It has been proven since the beginning of the world and to every member of our class especially, that to those, who have endured suffering together, is a tie of friendship and love everlasting.

So to our sorrow and to our joy the first of September found some thirty members of our class back in school to drill "those — — rats." During the next ten days or so our class was augmented to a number around one hundred and forty; a good size class to say the least.

Things began with a good start in most departments and most conspicuous in Football and Military. In football the prospects seemed so good, as was later proven, that each contender had to knuckle down to work right at the start. Some fifteen or twenty classmates were among the candidates. In the military department, with the four new R. O. T. C. Units, everyone was interested because of the nearness of that long looked for trip to unveil the statue of General Jackson in Richmond.

In the meantime our first class meeting brought up several points of interest, most notable the unanimous re-election of our faithful president, W. R. Harrison, and our worthy vice-president, W. V. Shannon, and the vote to ask into our class men who had left upper classes during the war. Mantor and Summers, of athletic note, were both unanimously asked to join us. We are proud of you both and know you will prove worthy of '22.

Sure enough, on the morning of October 10th, the whole battalion entrained for Richmond. The trip there passed uninterrupted and with nothing exciting. On arriving in Richmond about five o'clock, we were marched to the Grey's Armory, our headquarters. It was here that we were notified of another victory for our Football Team. They having played in Richmond that afternoon. A short while was spent in organizing the Corps in the Armory. As soon as this was over the whole Corps was granted leave until 12 o'clock midnight When ranks broke a mad rush was made for the door. Classmates joined classmates, as did keydets their parents and friends of the fair sex.

That night the whole Corps was the guest of honor at a big hop in the Richmond Blues Armory, given by the young ladies of Richmond. Those who went spent a most enjoyable evening and those who cared not to trip the light fantastic took in a show or the Virginia State Fair. Hula! Hula!

The next afternoon, Saturday, we had one long hot parade. Thanks that that was all. Again we were turned loose for the night. All of us managed to find the place that best suited our tastes. Some went to dinner parties at the Country Club of Virginia, many to the Jefferson Hotel for dinner and a real snappy shag afterwards, while still others took in the other hotels.

The next afternoon, Saturday, we had one long hot parade. Thanks, giving Day. We'll say that was some trip. Mantor, Summers and Bunting were our supports to that 13 to 0 victory over our ancient rivals.

With Football season over, and a great one at that, we thought we would don the independence and anarchistic freedom of the Third Classmen. 'Twas on the tenth of December our first bomb was heard. Yes! The night was cold and dreary too, just because we had to walk Special Guard. But for what care we, for in just a few weeks later Old '22 was heard from again. The other 21 bombs for the Class of Twenty-two were shot within the course of eighteen hours on the last day of Mid-year Exams. Great work! Eh?

To quote another:

"Place the name of the Class among the rest,
Who've done their duty well:
And to the classes following,
Someone this story tell.
Let him give fame and glory
To the Thirteen chosen few,
Who threw the bombs and saved the name
Of the Class of Twenty-Two."

Now in Basketball we did our share towards winning the South Atlantic Championship. Summers, Bunting and Campbell, all of varsity calibre represented us, besides a large number on the scrubs. Just look out for us in Baseball and Track.

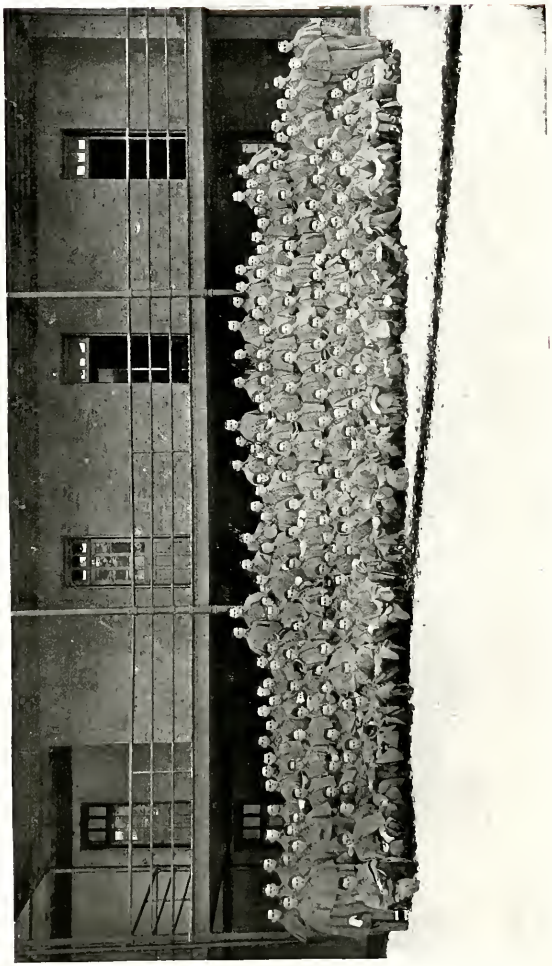

As a closing word let us say to our dear Alumni and fellow-cadets, that, although we are young in the game, we have been here long enough to get the true V. M. I. spirit into our bones. We shall forever honor your Alma Mater, and ours to be, in defeat and glorify her in victory.

FOURTH CLASS

THIS year ours is the largest class in school, there being at the present date over two hundred new cadets enrolled. We are, prophecy proving true, a unit of future strength for the Institute, when, in our future years, we shall have passed from mean third-classmen, rejoicing in our freedom newly-gained, into dignified First-classmen, rejoicing in capes and privileges.

During this session the Institute was saddled with a "doubly redoubled" burden. In addition to the infantry training of former years there has come artillery, cavalry, and engineering units. Hampered by a lack of facilities in both men and materiel, the work has gone nobly on. This class, having to learn artillery as well as infantry, has been placed in somewhat adverse circumstances. But we "carry on" and we don't think we are a disgrace to the Institute, nor will we fail her in the pinch.

We have seen a record-breaking standard set in the world of athletics this year. Most of the old letter men were back but we gave Hunt, Gardere, and Fox to the football team, and Page, Kyle, and Romeyn were our best in basketball

Our greatest days were after our football team completely demolished V. P. I. at Roanoke. We were made old cadets during the Thanksgiving hops and lived through it to the fullest extent of the law. Some of us missed the Christmas hops on account of a small matter one night after taps when we turned out in full force to celebrate nothing in general, and everything in particular, with clashing dippers and clanging water buckets.

Early in January we had the only meeting, which any class holds the first year, to elect our class officers. Hunt was chosen president, Caldwell vice-president, and Hankins historian. Both elections were unanimous and we truly feel proud of the men we have made our leaders.

We promise all we are able to give to the Institute in future years, when, a class fully coalesced, we shall come into our own. In all things we have tried to uphold the honor and show the spirit of V. M. I. Our past, though we ourselves speak it, has not been altogether devoid of merit: We have been laying foundations deep and strong.

To our future destiny! It must inevitably unroll: Fate cannot be hindered. Yes, it lies within our own free will to make or mar our future condition and goal. When we look back upon the milestones—and every day once seemed to be a league—we have passed, and swear that thus the future will be good; then we will surely leave our impress true.

HISTORIAN.

The Reason Why

This barracks is a funny place, you hate it while you're here.
You hear men say a dozen times, "I won't come back, I swear."
But they come back.

They curse authority, they know they hate them all.
They long to see the outside world, and other things recall.
But they come back.

You see alumni come and stand around.
A look upon each face, as tho on sacred ground.
When they come back.

They get together when they are far away
They talk of barracks, and me and all do say,
"If I could get back."

What is the thing that brings you back in after years,
That makes you tell your class goodbye in tears,
And then come back?

Is it the walls and air about the place?
Is it to see what you yourself did face
That brings you back?

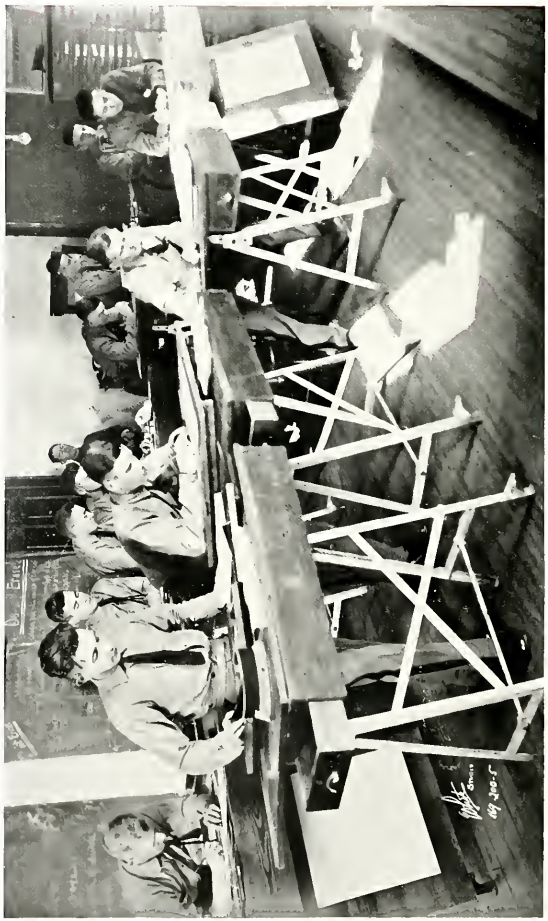

Tis rather more than these that will not let you stay
From it, when you could spend but half a day,
By coming back.

It is the men you love and knew long years ago,
Remembrance of the stays with you, and so
You come back.

SUMMER SCHOOL

DID you ever have that peculiar sensation derived from looking back and finding more things behind than happened to be in front? It's a weird feeling, more especially when that little bit of parchment certifying that you have successfully completed your college education happens to be depending on those things in front.

Thoroughly understanding the situation, being ambitious young men desirous of seizing each and every opportunity to be found, there gathered near two score, more or less intelligent individuals, in a certain spot within the County of Rockbridge. Here, far from the maddening crowd, safely isolated from the pleasures and diversions of the city, they sought to try the soothing influences of Calculus and like subjects upon their wearied minds.

In the course of time our heroes gained much helpful knowledge which enabled them to find the value of X when given Y and Z; to write a letter which would not begin "Dere Mabul;" to determine the distance between the earth and the moon through the use of a dead soldier as the only instrument, and to locate the most profitable "still" situations among the surrounding mountains.

In a certain chronicle of like events written in ye good old days we read of the arrival of proselytes at "B. D's." shrine laden with the sackcloth and ash uniform and certain heavy articles which gave forth a pleasant clinking sound when a suitcase was given a sudden jar. "O Tempora! O Mores! Senatum————" well the Senatum has seen fit to deprive the erstwhile garden of this United States of Four Roses and other more or less desirable flowers. We digress, it is true, but it was necessary to explain the mountainous search of the "still" places which proved such an interesting diversion to the temporary residents of Rockbridge Alum.

The master mind which dominated the research work of these most excellent young men was so cogwheeled and "Calculused" up to the ninth power that it was possible to use an evoluted Fireplug, Rocks, and other natural phenomena as successful instructors in the art of gathering knowledge of subjects forgotten but not gone.

Not for an instant should the reader believe that the light recreation afforded by the perusal of these aforementioned arts demanded the entire absorption of every available moment of time. Far from it. In consideration of the evidence presented it is quite evident that the far deeper study of necromancy occupied many all too fleeting moments. This conclusion is derived from the knowledge that the wee small hours of the night were often disturbed by weird and oft repeated calls upon the mystic number twenty-one to bring the bacon home. It is also likely that history came in for a large share of attention, for it was remarked by a majority of those present that the pictures of the four most famous queens in the world when gathered in one hand provided sufficient food for thought and firm grounds for an unfaltering trust in their ability to enrich the holder.

Notwithstanding their absorption in these matters it required the assistance of many "Shepherds" to hold the summer Keydets to the straight and narrow path. In spite of the difficulties in the matter of location and the almost insurmountable obstacles which beset the path of pleasure, it was finally decided to transform the wilds of the village into a resemblance of a habitable city. It is true that paved streets, cabarets, the latest shows, and other accessories were unobtainable, but by employing extraordinary diligence, with the use of great inventive genius a fair measure of success rewarded the efforts of the laborers. The strain of jazz bands began to float out upon the still air during the wee small hours, joy was unconfined, and gaiety reigned supreme.

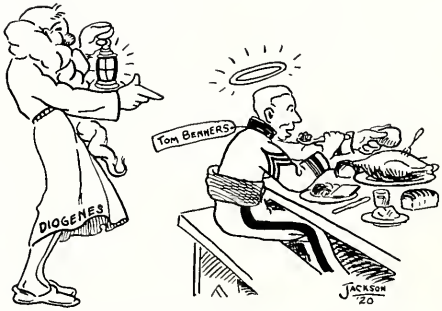

As might have been expected there were times when everything grew dull and tiresome, when the hot sun beat down upon the weary workers and almost added brain fever to brain fag, when even the fish bit; and when the "daily juties" of old barracks life would have been a welcome relief. But these moments of depression were dispelled by the origination of some new sport, outdoor or indoor. Many employed their time in efforts to instruct the waitresses in the art of making biscuits, with only a moderate degree of success.

If the constant dropping of water will wear away a stone it is equally as certain that the constant passing of seconds will wear away time. The summer drew to an end and the passing days conjured up visions of openings, gray uniforms, reveille and rifles. The time drew near when a fond farewell would be spoken to the Alum and the caravan would wend its way toward the metropolis of Lexington to take up winter quarters.

Preparations were begun to end the term in a blaze of celebration, if not of glory, and plans were laid with this end in view. The surrounding country was searched for suitable music and at last an orchestra was engaged in Waynesboro and transported to the scene of action. No detail was neglected and when the night arrived in due course of time everything was ready for the best effort in the way of Final Balls that had ever been pulled off.

The splendor of that dance is beyond description, and it will suffice to say that the oldest inhabitant declared he had never seen anything to equal it After this great blow-out came the exodus. Some departed with heavy hearts and all with heavy heads. But the sight of barracks with the associated realization of re-exams made the Alum seem a veritable paradise, and all found it hard to think of settling down for ten weary months until the welcome air of Auld Lang Syne should again release them from the thrall of monotony.

R. O. T. C.

NEITHER the S. A. T. C. of 1918, nor its predecessor, the former R. O. T. C., had any appreciable effect upon the military system of V. M. I., owing to the fact that infantry was the only course of instruction offered. However, with the beginning of the session of 1919-20, the "Reservation" took on an aspect of bustle and innovation such as must have caused "Stonewall" to turn over in his grave at the sight of such radical departures from the time-honored "Squads right, squads left" of earlier days.

The principle of the R. O. T. C. as now established by the government is the development at the various colleges of a sufficient number of officers on the reserve list to supply the country's needs in the event of war, without the confusion and delay that marked our belated advent into the recent conflict.

The Institute has been signally honored with four units of the R. O. T. C.: Engineering, Artillery, Cavalry, and Infantry, headed by officers of the regular army and supplied with an enlisted personell and complete equipment for all branches.

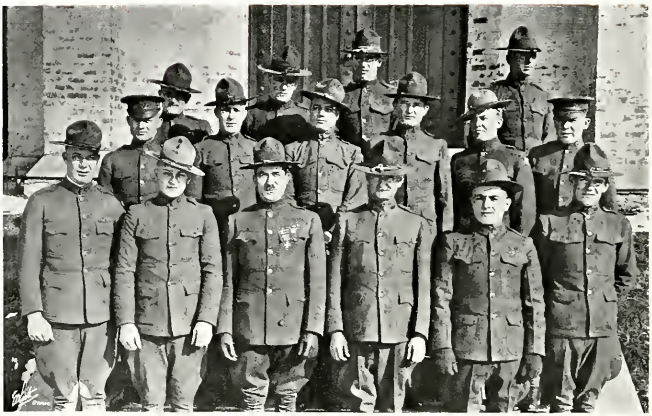

In an Institution so essentially military, such variety is indeed the spice of life. Though infantry training for all as the foundation of discipilne still reigns supreme, the specialization for a part of the time by each cadet, according to his choice, in one of the above courses, has done much to relieve the monotony of an invariable routine and to make for a balanced output of officer material.

The institution here, of the R. O. T. C., far from being a departure from tradition, is an indication of a progressive spirit and an assurance of the continued value of V. M. I. to the nation in the future as in the past.

COACHES

COACH "RED" FLEMING

"RED" came to us direct from the Marine Corps where his constant association with a great number of V. M. I. men imbued the old "Spirit" into him. He came determined to beat V. P. I. on Thanksgiving Day and we all know how he took his position for the first year and produced a team which for the first time in nineteen years, was able to turn the tables on Tech.

His record speaks for itself. For three years he played on the Washington and Jefferson team, during which time, he was picked by Walter Camp for his All-American Team. For two years following his graduation he played professional ball in Ohio and, at the termination of his contract, enlisted in the Marine Corps, where he played on the Marine's team at Quantico until he received his commission shortly before the armistice. He received his discharge sometime later, and the Institute was fortunate in being able to secure his service as coach.

Coach Fleming deserves all the praise that can possibly be bestowed upon him, for he has accomplished in one year what others have tried for many. He is admired and respected by all who have met him and his pleasing attitude and personality have made him innumerable friends. We know that his success in other lines will parallel his accomplishments here.

COACH H. J. SPRUHAN

Next to the military supremacy of the Institute, and possibly, from a purely personal viewpoint, even above that in the hearts and hopes of all Cadets, the success of our athletic teams holds sway. Honored in defeat and glorified in victory, the "Big Team" embodies our spirit at home and carries our standards abroad. At times, certain memorable occasions, it was, and is, the Institute.

The success of our teams this year has been notable. Much of the credit for that success must be given to the coaching. For the best of that coaching we thank the efficient, unassuming Spruhan. In football an able lieutenant, in basketball a superalative l e a d e r—the best coach of the best team in the South-Atlantic. Not the hail-fellow-well-met kind who makes his best impression at the beginning and dwindles to insignificance at the end, but one for whom respect and friendship grows by long association. The team, the Corps, the Institute, can never express too fully its appreciation of his work and of him.

CAPT. H. M. READ

Capt. Read was a member of the Class of 1916. After his graduation he became a sub-professor of the Institute and has so continued up to the present, with the exception of the time which he spent at Camp Lee.

In the spring of 1918 he volunteered his services as coach of Track and thus undertook the colossal task of raising a second rate sport to its present high position among the athletics of V. M. I. The squad was composed, for the most part, of Rats who had more ambition than ability, but were anxious to give their all for a man whom they all admired and respected. By his untiring efforts the coach turned out a team of which the school was justly proud.

It is no small honor to hold the high position that the V. M. I. team holds in Track and, as has been shown, this honor is due in no small measure to the faithful work of Capt. Read. It is not generally known that the coach receives no compensation for his services, and that what he does is done because of his love for his Alma Mater and his desire to see V. M. I. at the head of the list in all branches of sport.

Our Alma Mater

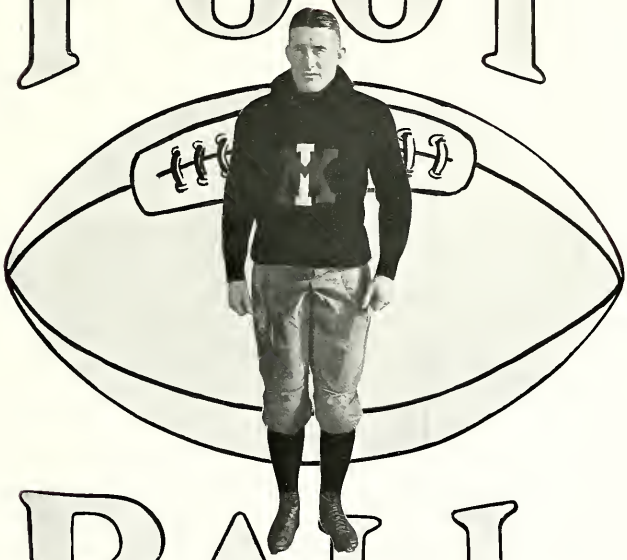

Music by Maj. Bagby and C. B. King, '22
Words by W. H. Milton, Jr. '20

Old V. M. I. is in our hearts today,
The corps stands loyal in the same old way.
Ours is the spirit that shall never die,
Win or lose we are for V. M. I.

Chorus:

We love our Old Alma Mater,
True to alumnus or friend.
As one we stand, thru out this land,
Proud of her history and men.
We love our Old Alma Mater,
We honor Old V. M. I.
It's the same in defeat or in victory,
For! V. M. I. shall never die.

"Bill" earned the distinction this year of being the best manager any athletic team has had since the year Jimmy Hamlin so capably fostered the basketball team under his management. It has often been said that the position of manager is the most important and yet the least lauded position connected with the team, and this is about the case here as elsewhere. The manager must work untiringly and no matter how much he does there is usually one thing left undone—or someone to complain about some such trivial omission, at least. No one thinks of the manager as an essential to success. The game is played and so-and-so is the star winning all the credit. True, the men who have the skill and training to play the game should get the credit—and their monograms as a reward—but the man who attends to every little detail connected with the entire season should also get his share.

There was nothing too good for the men on his team and "Bill" attended to every detail connected with their comfort. The numerous trips were well arranged and the usual inconveniences were somehow avoided. It was both quite appropriate and incidental that the successful team of the year of 1919 should be fortunate enough to have such a capable manager as "Bill" Winston.

IT has long been the dream and ambition of faithful supporters of V. M. I. to see her athletics placed on a par with her superiority in academic and military lines. In many previous years it has been so often the fate of her followers to be forced to content themselves with much less than would satisfy their fondest hopes and aspirations. This year, however, it was a different story.

"Red" Fleming came down from Washington and Jefferson and inaugurated a system of open play and a forward passing game, hitherto unknown at the Institute, which worked wonders, winning games which would have been lost by different tactics.

"Pinky" Spruhan taught the line to hold and showed each man the rudiments and fine points of playing his position.

Colonel Nelly descended from his official dignity and gave the keydets a chance to even up the score, incidentally giving them the benefit of his long experience as head coach at West Point.

"Jimmy" Leech, that stumpy miniature whirlwind, left off fighting niggers with the Marines in Haiti and came back to make life miserable for the opposing defense. "Jere" Bunting came back from Salem to wiggle through the line and take in forward passes. "Tuggy" Stuart barked out those "touchdown" signals and made the enemy thank their stars that that missing foot or so hadn't been added to his stature. "Wooden" Dickson bucked the line all over the lot.

Ingram

Stuart

Wilson

Bunting

"Bert" Bacharach deserted Paris Island to boot the ball seventy yards or so. Sam Mason and Hawkins broke up plays before they had started and pulled down passes with ease and certainty. Summers joined us from West Point and Mantor applied his experience in the tank corps to a worthier cause than pushing over houses and stone walls. Smith held the center position and with Harrison and Hunt, and occasionally Turner, Gardere and Shipley on the flanks, combined with the two above mentioned, put the Hindenburg line in the shade.

Boys, I tell you we had a football team! We hated to lose to Virginia and we'll have to hand it to N. C. A. & E., but they taught us our faults and made it hard for the rest of our opponents. At Chapel Hill, where Virginia later dipped her colors, the team ran wild. It was there that they gained the name of the "Flying Cadets," a name as appropriate as "Stonewall" to Jackson. At Lynchburg Davidson put up a stiff fight. It began to be a pleasure for those battle-scarred heroes to come back and give the team a chance to show its mettle to barracks, to smile and be smiled at, rather than to mourn and receive condolences.

V. M. I. 13 V. P. I. 0

'Tis a long lane that has no turning.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, as V. M. I. has had ample occasion to note in the course of the past fifteen or twenty years. Only a school which has tasted naught but defeat from its traditional rival for eighteen years—V. M. I.'s last victory over V. P. I. was won in 1900, the historians tell us—can know how ineffably sweet to the Lexington lads was the triumph achieved at the Fair Grounds on Nov. 25, 1919.

V. M. I. won because the Cadets were the better team. Nobody who saw the game is likely to challenge the statement. The heavier Tech eleven fought desperately to avert defeat but its best efforts went for naught against the superior play of the Cadets. That there was nothing savoring of a fluke about their victory was proved by the fact that for most of the game the V. M. I. team was without the services of Leech, its star halfback around whom the team's offense was built, but notwithstanding this handicap the Cadets kept the play for the most part in their oppenent's territory and forced a second touchdown in the last period by way of sewing things up and making absolutely certain of the result.

It is useless to try to pick the star of the Cadet team as every single man did his utmost and was, consequently, an essential cog in the successful machine and, therefore, a star. Stuart was the gamest little fighter ever seen on the Roanoke field and his touchdown assured the victory. Bunting was speed personified and caught the long pass for the first touchdown, while Dickson played his superb defensive game thruout. Bacharach made his initial appearance in the backfield after Jimmie Leech was banished and his long punts averaging around sixty-five yards kept the ball in Tech's territory. The line worked as a unit and Tech could neither hold nor gain thru the charging onslaught of Mantor, Summers, Harrison, and Smith. Hawkins and Mason cut short Tech's hopes of gaining around the ends and, time and again, broke up plays before they could well get started. As said before, the game was one of eleven stars, or rather of twenty-two—as Tech played a beautiful game and, tho outplayed, they were not outfought.

THE SCRUBS

Little need be said, and not enough can be said, of the scrubs who actually made the team what it was. Untiring, unrewarded, and unselfish, these men worked as hard as any man on the varsity and anyone of them would have been a star on the average team had he only had the chance.

And still these men were not scrubs in the actual sense of the word. They were all called on time and again to fill a place on the varsity and in every case they made good. They are members of the Big Team of 1919-20 and we look upon them as such.

BASKET BALL

THE SOUTHERN INTER-COLLEGIATE CHAMPIONS.

BASKETBALL

Captain .....B. M. Bacharach

Manager .....J. W. Nurney

CHAMPIONS of the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Athletic Association and Champions of the South! A scientifically developed machine of stars, each of whom gave his best to the team and yet made an enviable individual record; a highly capable Coach, who knew the game as an expert and had the confidence of his men as well as confidence in them; a squad of the gamest, most faithful Scrubs that ever built up a Big Team; and five hundred loyal Keydets as full of fight as the players themselves—these are some of the reasons why the Basketball season of 1919-20 will always be remembered as one of the most gloriously successful periods in the athletic annals of V. M. I.

No resume written to space can begin to do justice to the spectacular features of the past season in which there was nothing monotonous except the frequency and regularity with which V. M. I.'s opponents were skillfully and thoroughly trimmed. It was never a question of "Who won?", but "What's the score?" In this connection it may be noted that in almost every game V. M. I. rolled up an imposing score, at the same time allowing the other team to make only an occasional basket. Virginia Tech. enjoyed the twin distinction of being the only team to score over twenty points against V. M. I., and of being the only team to prevent V. M. I. from scoring over thirty points in a game.

V. M. I.'s bewildering fast floor work and almost perfect passing, combined with the fact that every man on the team could—and did—shoot, proved too much for every rival for South Atlantic honors. A five-star basketball team is about as common as a royal straight flush—and about as easy to beat. This fact was evidenced when the team got off to a flying start and played through the season without a slump.

To coach G. H. Spruhan belongs a vast amount of the credit for the splendid performances of his team. He showed himself to be a tireless worker, an inspiring coach, and a genuine sportsman. Besides the flawless manner in which he directed the strategy of every game, he possessed an uncanny knack of picking out a weak spot in the game—and of strengthening it. Only the team itself could appreciate the value of his services more than did the Alumni and Corps.

Captain "Bert" Bacharach, the All-South Atlantic guard in 1919 and 1920, and now playing his fourth year on the Varsity, well deserved the honor of leading a team that furnished three men to the mythical All-South Atlantic quint. Besides his unusual qualifications for the captaincy, he combined lighting speed with an ability to score that is most unusual in a guard. And time after time, he would race down the floor and cage the ball while his forward was wondering what it was all about. Bacharach made 76 points during the season while his opposing forwards were making 50.

"Jimmie" Leech, Captain for 1921, and All-South Atlantic Guard in 1920, is fitted in every way to succeed Bacharach as Captain. He rated close to Bacharach in scoring ability and proved his value to the team by guarding even closer than his running mate. Leech was generally busy making his forward miserable, but he found time to get in nearly every play and he could invariably be relied on to take the ball down the floor by himself.

"Jere" Bunting, All-South Atlantic forward, demonstrated his cleverness by leading a free-scoring team in the number of points made. Bunting's accurate passing contributed to many of the scores made by his team-mates, and he always managed to elude his affectionately clinging guard long enough to display his distinctive and exceedingly effective "south-paw hook." Moreover, the goals he tossed from the foul line helped to swell V. M. I.'s top-heavy scores and to give him the substantial total of 139 points to the undersized number of 8 made by his opponents.

Summers, at center, developed rapidly and astonishingly during the season. His improvement in form and speed became more obvious in every game, his guarding became airtight, and his shooting deadly. His work reached its climax in the last game of the season, in which he outjumped, outscored, and outplayed his stellar rival, Parrish of V. P. I. Summers scored 72 points for the season, while the pivot men of opposing teams contented themselves with making 38.

Henry Lee, at right forward, ranked next to Bunting in scoring ability, having 112 points to his rivals 14. Lee started the season with a rush, annexing 13 goals from the floor in the first game played. His playing was at its best in the first game with V. P. I., in which he turned in six prettily executed field goals. A superior brand of basketball is natural to him, and he is expected to play his usual distinguished game next year.

Campbell waited all season for his chance, which came when he replaced Lee at forward. While he was not the finished player Lee was, he made up for this by his determination and fighting spirit. Campbell could be counted on to play at top speed every minute that he was in the game.

Stuart and Hawkins, substitute guards, were awarded letters for their wholehearted, consistent playing throughout the season. On an average team, these men would have starred, a fact clearly shown whenever either of them played in a game. Stuart, in particular, was quick-thinking and aggressive, and he should prove a worthy running mate for Leech next season. Unfortunately, Hawkins, like Bacharach, will be lost by graduation.

The Scrubs, especially the "rat" team, cannot be too highly praised for the unselfish spirit shown in their work with the Varsity. It was the nightly scrimmages with the Scrubs that perfected te Varsity's game, and anyone who has seen the Varsity play will concede that the Scrubs did their work thoroughly.

Lee

Bunting

Summers

Bacharach

Leech

The deciding game of the series with V. P. I. was played in Lynchburg. It was in itself a classic and deserves to be described from start to finish. Both teams were at the height of their development and both teams were determined to win. The lead changed hands several times in the first half, but the Varsity proved itself of Championship caliber by drawing ahead until it held the long end of a 16 to 12 score at the close of the first period. Tech was out for blood in the second frame, but V. M. I. was there to win that game and every man was full of the confidence and fight that had proved the undoing of every opponent. The second half was repetition of the first, and the critical game of the season ended in V. M. I.'s favor 28 to 26. For V. M. I., Bacharach played his last game like the star that he is. Bunting's shooting and passing were marvels of accuracy and Leech's game was flawless. Campbell, playing right forward, was in the thick of every scrimmage. Summers, at center, was at his best in every department of the game and stood out as the star of the classic.

Earlier in the season, several teams had cancelled, and now an attempt was made to schedule other contests, particularly with Georgetown and Vanderbilt. This was impossible, and the greatest Basketball Team in the history of the Institute rested on its laurels.

BASE BALL

BASE BALL

THE Baseball Team—with only three of last year's monogram men left as a nucleus—has started a hard schedule and appears to be one of the best teams that has ever represented the Institute. The team has a big obstacle to surmount, namely the records of both football and basketball, but the form shown thus far gives us cause to believe that Spruhan is going to duplicate his previous records in the other sports and turn out a winner.

Capt. "Dan" Ingram is pitching beautiful ball and is well backed up by such mound artists as Pate, Page, Badgett, and Burger. Gardene is a new man but his work behind the bat has labelled him a star in that department. Jere Bunting is holding down first base; Stuart, Leech, and Mann are playing the other three positions in the infield, while Jordan, Perkinson, and Johnson are giving them a hard fight for their jobs. In the outfield, Bacharach, McMillan, and Summers are playing stellar games with Sedwick and Roberts as alternates.

With such good material and the confidence inspired by other successers, it is only right to expect the baseball team of 1920 to be one of the best in the section.

TRACK TEAM

Captain ..... Kane

Manager ..... Marshall, R.

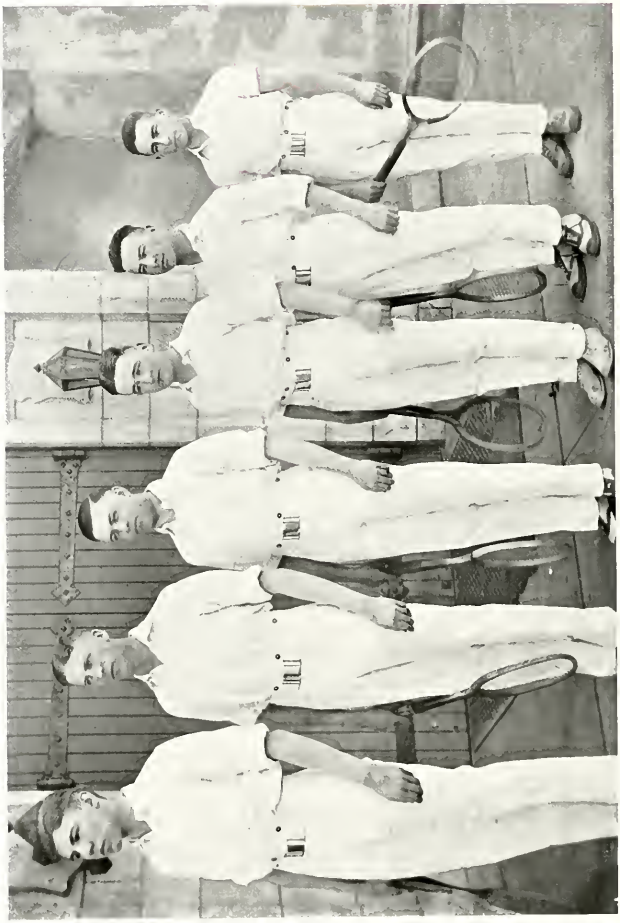

TRACK has come into its own as a major sport at V. M. I. and last year's record assured us that it is here to stay. Each year since 1917, when it was declared a major sport, it has gained in popularity by leaps and bounds; each year the team has improved and now bids fair to become the leading contender in the S. A. I. A. A. Something of the standing of the team can be determined by a review of last year's record.

In the first meet against Trinity, we won, doubling the score on them and taking every first place except one. Then at Blacksburg, we lost by a lone point. The meet was full of thrills and excitement, victory being undecided till the last event was over. But by far the greatest achievement of the year was the copping of second place in the S. A. I. A. A. meet held at Johns Hopkins, our first year in the Association, winning over V. P. I. and many other fast teams. There were no outstanding stars on the squad but a few who did the best work might be mentioned. Knapp, F., captain, was always good for several points in the weights and jumps. Kane was a consistent winner of the sprints. Gleaves, Jones A., Sebring, and Smith D. V. did some wonderful work and we will miss them.

Still, the porspects are brighter this year for an even better team than last year's. Over a hundred men reported at the first call for candidates and are rapidly rounding into form. Kane, captain, and Costello, a fourth-classman, will represent us in the sprints. Summers and Mantor are doing wonders with the weights, while Semans J., who won the firsts in the S. A. I. A. A. last year, is befter than he was then. Jordan H. and Dickson are back again at the hurdles and are making fast time on them. Ripley, Shipley, Turner H., Pendleton N., Buch and LaFollette, a new man, are showing up best in the distance runs.

Manager Marshall R. has made out a good schedule but was forced to place all three meets away from home on account of the lack of facilities here. The first is at Trinity on April 17th; the second is at Charlottesville on April 23rd against the Universities of Virginia and North Carolina. The third and largest is the S. A. I. A. A. meet which will probably be held at Blacksburg.

A brilliant season is predicted but let it be said that all we do, or have done is due to the untiring efforts of our Coach, "Son" Read. He is a wearer of the Monogram himself and since 1918, when he took charge of the squad, has lifted it to the high position which it occupies. We are truly indebted to him; and he does this only because he has the true V. M. I. Spirit, and because of his love for the Institute.

TENNIS TEAM

Capt.-Manager ..... Lee

TENNIS at V. M. I. has taken on new life within the last few years and this present season's outlook is promising indeed. Heretofore, the schedule in this sport has been erratic, one year several meets being played, the next year none. But a review of last year's Spring Tournament and the enthusiasm with which it was entered into by the sixty entrants assures us that tennis has gained the popularity it justly deserves.

The tournament began in the latter part of April but, on account of so few courts, it dragged out into June before the finals were reached. In five hard-fought sets, Blake defeated Lee, thereby winning the championship of the school. The only schedule match was played against Trinity on May 8th, and resulted in a 3-2 victory for us.

For his brilliant work of the past two years, Lee was selected as Captain-Manager and from the schedule he has made out it appears to have been a particularly wise choice. It is the largest schedule ever attempted but promises to be completed successfully. There are three matches away from Lexington and probably as many as five on our own courts. The Spring Tournament will be held as usual though, according to present plans, it will start late in May.

About a hundred men are out working for the team and there is a wealth of good material from which to choose. The following men showed up well last year and are back again: Lee, Davidson, McMillan, Montague, Clarkson, Young, J. M., and Macrae.

There are several men who are showing real skill and they will make it hot for somebody in the race for the team.

Lee

The Schedule is as Follows:

April	17	Lynchburg College	Lexington
April	24	Geo. Washington Univ.	Lexington
May	1	University of Virginia	Charlottsville
May	5	Trinity College	Lexington
May	8	St. John's College	Lexington
May	14	Trinity College	Durham, N. C.
May	15	North Carolina Univ.	Chapel Hill
May	22	Virginia Poly. Inst.	Lexington

GYM TEAM

Capt.-Manager .....Horn

THE gymnasium team is organized each year in October and practice is carried on from then until almost the last day of the year, preparing for the two exhibits given annually, one at Government Inspection, the other during Finals. Those men who show sufficient ability at these exhibits, as judged by the coach, are awarded monograms. Work consists of performance on the mats, flying rings, parallel bars, and the horizontal bar.

This year's team is to be judged not by its size, which is far from tremendous, but by the quality of the exhibitions to be given. Thru the aid of the coach, Maj. S. M. Millner, a V. M. I. graduate and former gym. man, the team has improved wonderfully since the first practice and intends to present two performances which will supply all the thrills and pleasure that can be hoped for.

Horne, Ashley, Briggs, Budd, and Ryland compose the squad this year. All of them will be back next fall, and with the new material to be expected, the gym. team for the coming session bids fair to be one of the best seen at the Institute for several years past.

Horne

BOXING AND WRESTLING

Capt.-Manager .....Murrill

THESE sports have gained popularity and prestige at a remarkable rate during the past year, due to the fact that the Athletic Association has replaced the old, worn out equipment, with new mats and gloves. It was on account of the late arrival of this new material that the Boxing and Wrestling teams were forced to turn down offers of matches with West Point and several Virginia Colleges during the past season.

Heretofore, about the only recognition the Boxing and Wrestling teams have received has been confined to bouts and matches between the halves of basketball games at Government Inspection and Finals. Each year, however, an increasing number of men begin to realize the value of these sports and this season over seventy-five candidates were out. There is no fear of this interest declining and it is a surely that several inter-collegiate meets will be arranged for next year. Nor is this increased interest confined to the men at the Institute; all over the country teams are being organized at the various colleges and universities, and these sports are being recognized as inter-collegiate athletics.

The rapid development of these sports is, in a great measure, due to Mr. J. W. Zimmerman of Lexington, whose untiring efforts and skillful coaching have laid the foundation for the production of teams able to uphold the name of V. M. I. in the ring or on the mat, against all opponents.

THE ORCHESTRA

CADET ORCHESTRA

MUSIC is one of the essentials of a soldier's good morale. The orchestra has probably filled its place better this year than ever before. Composed of the instruments that give up-to-date jazz and yet retain the qualities of better music, this organization has endeared itself in the hearts of cadets because it helps to fill the wide gap between home and the Institute. It's music takes him back to the summer, to his "Citz" friends, to the last hops and to occasions he likes to remember. In the dreary winter months it is the orchestra that helps to cheer him up.

Each Saturday night the orchestra furnishes the music at the picture show. It also puts on the Saturday afternoon te dansants during the hops which are the peppiest of them all. Of course drama would not be complete without music so the orchestra invariably makes the trips with the Dramatic Club. In May, a call came from the Richmond Alumni Association for the jazzers to furnish music for an old-time V. M. I. hop at the country club. This meant another trip as well as showing the alumni some barracks pep. In the springtime the after supper concerts on the stoops help to lessen the days until finals.

Probably the greatest contribution of all has been the production of the "V. M. I. Spirit" on a Columbia record by the orchestra and quartet. This necessitated a trip to New York last December. Its success has surpassed all expectations. Alumni all over the world are now able to listen to the song of their Alma Mater as only Institute men can render it. If you want to hear this year's cadet orchestra just try the "Spirit" on your "vic."

U. M. I. Spirit

Oh, clear the way, U. M. I. is out today,
We're here to win this game;
Our team will bring us fame,
In Alma Mater's name.
For though the odds be against us, we'll not care,
You'll see us fight the same;
Always the same old spirit and we'll triumph once again,
And though defeat seems certain, it's the same with U. M. I.;
Our battle cry is "Never, Never Die."

For when our line starts to weaken, our backs fail to gain,
Our ends are so crippled to win seems in vain,
Then the corps roots the loudest; we'll yet win the day,
The team it will rally and "Fight," "Fight," "Fight," "Bay."
We'll gain through the lines and we'll circle the ends,
Old Red, White and Yellow will triumph again;
The "Keydets" will fight 'em and never say die,
That's the spirit of U. M. I.

KEYDET WIT

BRAZ '23

THE KEYDET'S PRAYER

Old Nick who hangeth out at headquarters.
Put us wise to the game.
Quick! let Finals come.
Our term is done
In V. M. I. as it would be in Sing Sing.
Give us each our eight hour's "hay"
And forgive us our "bones"
As we forgive those who soaked 'em to us.
"Ship" us not for "running the block"
But grant us Xmas furlough.
For thine is the "Approved" stamp.
The demerit book and the "growley".
Even unto the nineteenth of June.
Amen.

THE LAND OF THE GOLDEN WEST

Oh I'll tell not a tale of the frozen North
Where men sell their lives for gold.
Or sing not of women, wine, or love,
Or wars and deeds of old.
But I'll tell of the land of the Golden West,
Which the "gim" riders used to haunt.
Where you go in a healthy "Keydet"
But come out a spectre, gaunt.
Where the "Bull" presides in splendor
Handing the "gravy slips" round;
But up above the fair "West" is,
And perils and trials abound.
This castor oil queen dispenses
Calomel, C. C.'s and Salts,
She says we're forever riding,
And always disparages our faults.
Where they see you smoke thru the keyhole,
Take your food and tobacco away.
It's a fine, fine place to be from
After a long, long stay.
Take down a broken finger,
"Salts will set it aright.
Stop in a while and see us,
You can stay up till nine at night."
For it's C. C.'s in the morning,
Aspirin in between.
Calomel at mid-day,
But food is never seen.
This the land of fear and terror,
Where the Golden West doth dwell,
And the horrors of that country
Have an all enduring spell.

PONY BOY HEISIG, TROOP H-2, LOWER ROAD CAVALRY SQUADRON, OUT FOR HIS MORNING EXERCISE OF THROWING THE BULL

HERE WE HAVE ONE OF THE STRANGEST CASES IN THE SCIENCE OF DUMBO-OLOGY — THE SCALES CLEARLY SHOW THAT THIS YOUNG GENTLEMAN'S HEAD WEIGHS LESS THAN NOTHING

— BAGBY'S PSYCHOLOGICAL JOURNAL

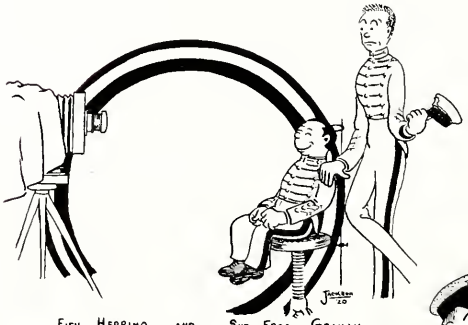

SUPPORTED BY HIS OLD FRIEND KING CASCADE, HORRIBLE HORACE LEADS THE CORPS A MERRY CHASE INTO THE MESS HALL

First Class Delinquencies

Adams:	Resembling "Relentless Rudolph" too closely.
Alvis:	Allowing "Relentless" to cut his biscuits.
Arrington:	Playing with fire, thereby getting singed.
Backus:	Repeatedly attempting to look intelligent.
Bacharach:	Gross trifling with young ladies' affections (third offence).
Barker:	Attending drill when not required to do so.
Benners:	Breaking Ashburne's food receiving record, by partaking of three helpings of sinker type dessert.
Berry:	Having cave man instincts, and allowing rat to outdo his time.
Bundy:	Not eating enough.
Calvert:	Getting a 9.5 instead of the usual max.
Casey:	Allowing Montgomery and Turner to beat him in the race for dumbest man in school.
Chung:	Stepping on pig tail while running to rev.
Comegys:	Acting sensible at the wrong time.
Cox:	Neglecting the Boy Scouts while as a Cadet.
Craighill:	Doing work, thereby causing roommates to have heart failure.
Davis:	Allowing name to be put on register from Pamplin.
Derryberry:	Staying awake in church.
De Shazo:	Imitating Buffalo Bill at Cavalry, thereby not using chair in messhall for two weeks after.
Fairlamb:	Having total disregard for local talent.
Gailliard:	Creating gross disorder at hops by dancing.
Gallman:	Trying to act "Cityfied."
Graham:	Not being able to walk under Jackson Arch.
Greene:	Allowing Duke to lead him on nocturnal sequesters.
Groover:	Being taken for a mule at the Lexington Horse Show.
Hairston:	Having two to marry on him inside of a year.
Hardy, F.:	Attempting to change from the Electrical Engineering to Arts on account of overwork.
Hardy, G.:	Allowing himself to be left waiting at the church.
Hardy, W.:	Realizing the greater Love and then refusing to allow others to dance with her at hops.
Haskell:	Taking two baths in one week.
Hawkins:	Repeatedly falling for strange Calic while on athletic trips.
Heisig:	Continually deserting horse at Cavalry Drill.
Herring:	Not using the usual stepladder when trying to mount.
Hoge:	Appearing like Fatty Arbuckle in Coatee.
Jackson:	Giving conclusive proof of Darwin's Theory.
Jefferies:	Losing Class ring and being unable to find same.
Jones:	Same as Hardy, G.
Jordan:	Attempting to get biscuits that are already cooked.
Kerlin:	Forgetting to fall off horse during drill, (first offence).
Lavender:	Plowing ground on riding Hall in abusive manner.
Mallory:	Having his hair combed during the hops.
Marshall:	Not studying but three hours per night.
Milton:	Allowing himself to be bitten by a real dog.
Monroe:	Voting for nationwide prohibition.
Montague:	Staying awake during class.
Montgomery:	Winning contest for Dumbest man in Barracks. Finding three different soul mates in six months.
Munson:	Staying at the Institute for five years due to love for the old walls.
Nurney:	Falling for every thing that wears a skirt. Acting as fashionplate for local tailors.
Parker:	Cornering rubber market.
Parrott:	Absent Midnight Inspection and reporting in Trunk room without authority.
Paxton:	Making girls over-envious of pink cheeks. Staying in school one year too long.
Potts:	Wearing look of injured innocence at all times.
Roberts, L.	Trying to look mannish, especially on Sunday rides.
Roberts, W.:	Having a slim chance with the women.
Satterfield:	Raising voice above a whisper. Forgetting to bring knitting to class.
Scott:	Imitating Nurney's style of dancing, thereby dangering lives of cadets at hops.
Slack:	Falling for the same girl Hen Hardy did.
Sydnor:	Writing one hundred and thirty pages in one letter.
Turner:	Giving away pictures indiscriminately. Having sixteen on correspondence list at one time, and using "Frenchy" methods to obtain more.
Wallace, C.:	Allowing himself to be caught in the presence of feminity.
Wallis, W.:	Not saying "Hullo" when greeting a friend.
Wang:	Riding the Gim, instead of his horse.
Whitfield:	Making intelligent remarks in Mechanics Class.
Williams:	U. S. C. W. A. P. at last hops, and allowing lady to say I. A. P. O. N.
Winston:	Having curly hair without authority. Continued shimmying at hops, after repeated warnings.

ARMED TO THE TEETH, TWEE TWEE PARROTT GOES A-HUNTING

FISH HERRING AND SHE-FROG GRAHAM POSING FOR THE HALL OF SHAME

WHO CAN IT BE?

"MY GOD! ANOTHER TEN POUNDS! HOW DO I GET THAT WEIGH?"

Ardent young Suitor: "May I call to-morrow evening if you have nothing on?"

She: "How dare you?"

Heard ten years after graduation:

Hoge: "Barker, why is it I see you in the Art Gallery so often?"

Barker: "My wife has made me cut out Burlesque Shows."

Voices floating out of second stoop window:

"Brethern, the Spirit moveth me in sundry places to 'kick it a blue one.'"

Second voice: "Yea verily, witness me also Brother, A-men."

Passing Minister: "A truly pious aggregation of young men."

The secret of "Caveman" Berry's marvelous propensity for making love has at last been discovered. While young, he was ill with scarlet fever and his temperature has never gone down.

Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard,
To try to quench her thirst,
But when she got there the cupboard was bare,
For Horace had been there first.

At sixteen she believes anything,
At twenty-five you have to show her a Blue Print.

When questioned by the Commandant about his shoes not being shined "Avoirdupois" Hoge calmly answered that he hadn't seen his feet in two years.

She lay in his arms and snuggled her head against his cheek———— a rush of emotion surged thru her————tenderly he caressed her and she closed her eyes in delight.

"Poor Kitty, did I hurt you?"

Sub to Parrott after Taps: "Permission to be out of quarters Parrott?"

Parrott: "Yes Sir, Hunting Permit, Sir."

Mother: "Did that young man kiss you last night?"

Shy young daughter: "Now mother, do you suppose he got church leave to hear me sing?"

Groover listening to church chimes while in a city on furlough: "I believe that clock's playing a tune."

Keydet during Xmas hops: "May I kiss your pretty hand?"

Young Lady: "It is easier to raise my veil than to take off my glove."

Young man encountering mother after his first drink. "Son, oh Son! why did you do it?"

Older Brother in next room: "Brother, oh Brother! Where did you get it?"

The Subs' Quarters

First of all comes Pee Foot,
Known too as Majah sick.
He hit the boys in physics
And never missed a lick.

We next have hard boiled Shady
Of whom the rats do tell
How in math and gymnasties
Gave them pluperfect hell.

Young Geese is quite a veteran
A most efficient Sub.
But will he be a Major?
That gives him quite a rub.

But don't forget Cap Cosine
Of the fighting Q. M. D.
He bosses Burke and Julius—
That's quite a job you see.

Who is that cute wee Captain?
Well tis Doggie, on my life.
He tried to vamp a calic,
But she said "Where is your wife?"

Here's Son, the bayonet fighter,
He makes them move so quick
If a buck goes out he works him
Until his heart is sick.

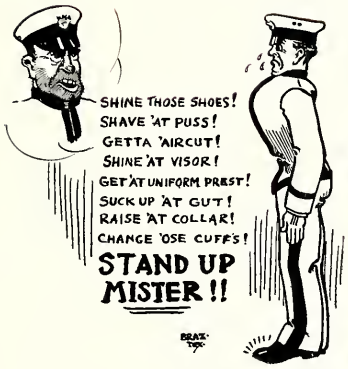

Don't laugh, tis only Alec
A strutting through the place,
He thinks himself so military
He even shines his face.

Ichy Belezza, the king of the Wops,
Is what we call him here.
Even the pawn brokers lock up their shops
When they hear that he is near.

Last but not least comes out Jim
Ted,
The whitest of them all,
Who treats you like a man, if you
Into his clutches fall.

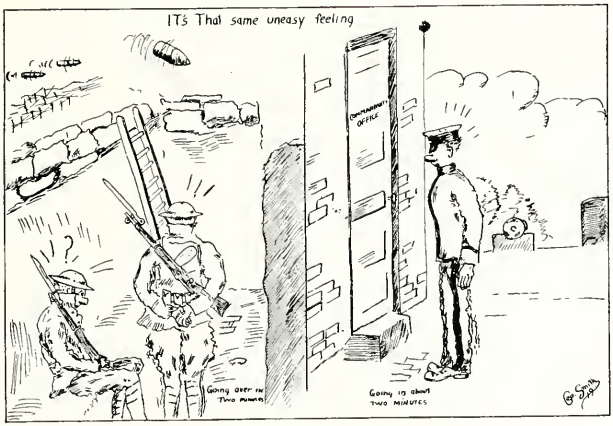

My tale is done, each one you see,
I will not tell my name.
For if I did the tours I'd walk
Would make me blush with shame.

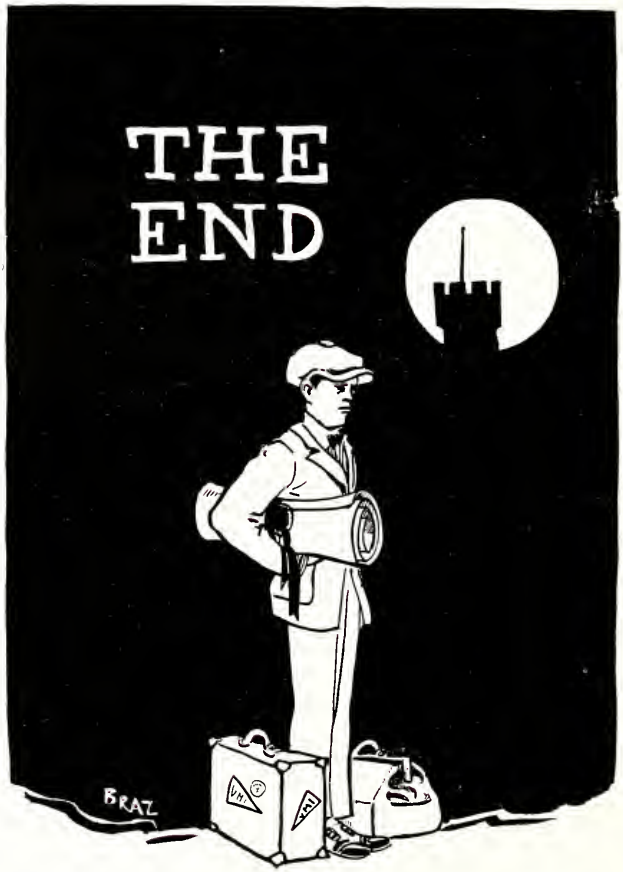

—Bolsheviki.

THE NAIL AND THE HAMMER

A Double-Jointed Fable with a Single Moral

THERE was once a ten-penny nail lying on an obscure shelf. It was a good little nail, as nails go—straight, shiny, and sharp-pointed. All it lacked to make it a useful member of society was application. For all the good it was doing humanity, it might just as well have been rusting away under the East River. Then one day there came a hammer and drove the nail sharply into a wall. There it remains to this day, living a career of usefulness and service.

There is a business house with a vital story to tell the world. It's a good story and they know it, but they don't know how on earth they can apply it. Then along comes the Big Hammer of Advertising, and—bang! the idea is driven home with a smash!

What is the moral?

Just this—your business may in some way differ from all other business. Your product may possess some quality that all others lack. There may be a nail on your shelf that ought to be utilized.

You may not realize it is there—it may take an outsider to find it. An Eskimo would be amazed at our factory whistles, while to us they are but a necessary evil.

But even we, as advertising specialists, cannot hit the nail on the head, unless you take the time to explain your problems and find out what service we are capable of rendering you.

In other words, take your advertising seriously. Don't rush into our office with some copy and say "Shoot it through tomorrow." You get speed this way, but not Service.

And Service is the handle of the hammer. Without it the hammer is useless.

For nearly half a century we have directed our energies toward perfecting our service. We believe that today we are better organized than ever before to provide our clients with the necessities of effective advertising.

"At Home" Since 1830

IT is almost ninety years since the Boston Evening Transcript made its first home run, and it has been running home ever since.

The Transcript is a business-man's paper; it frequents the financial districts; it is a fixed institution in educational circles; but first of all and most lasting of all it is a HOME newspaper.

Under the family lamp it is much more than a newspaper. It is a good magazine. This is particularly true of the Wednesday and Saturday issues.

If you are one of the few good advertisers who are not "At Home" with the Transcript, look through its pages and see what good company you are missing.

Benjamin Franklin said in 1758: "Deny self for self's sake."
"There are no gains without pains."
"Save to have, as many a little makes a mickle."

The Reward of Merit

In the world of commerce and industry, merit is measured by service rendered. And the reward of exceptional merit is high place and public recognition.

International Motor Trucks have won the reward of merit. Today they occupy an enviable place in the realm of business—a place achieved through consistent, low-cost hauling even where conditions are most trying.

Thousands of practical, close-figuring business men have proved to their full satisfaction that they used good judgement when they bought International Motor Trucks. They have found that their expectations of service from these trucks and after-sale service from us have been more than fulfilled.

The reward of merit—high place and public recognition—is adding to International Motor Truck sales every day.

There is a style of body and size of truck to meet every hauling requirement

The Newest and Best of Everything

TO accomplish anything in life we must all have "A Purpose," whether it be good, bad or indifferent. The gap between purpose and achievement can only be bridged over by conscientious endeavor—such endeavor as this store expends daily in its effort to serve you with the utmost efficiency and dispatch.

Our purpose is "Service," and to that end we leave no stone unturned.

Your demands, no matter how heavy, shall not swerve this store from this purpose.

We would consider it a privilege to serve you—

Entering the World Electrical

THE graduate of today enters a world electrical.

Gathered from the distant waterfalls or generated by the steam turbine, electric power is transmitted to the busiest city or the smallest country place.

Through the co-ordination of inventive genius with engineering and manufacturing resources, the General Electric Company has fostered and developed to a high state of perfection these and numerous other applications.

And so electricity, scarcely older than the graduate of today, appears in a practical, well developed service on every hand.

Recognize its power, study its applications to your life's work, and utilize it to the utmost for the benefit of all mankind.
